MARKETING CO. HOLD ELECTION OF DIRECTORS

Fourteen Directors Chosen to Fill Expired Terms and Vacancies

PRODUCERS HAVE TROUBLE

At the annual election held Tuesday in the Cameo room of the Morrison hotel, Chicago, the younger element of the Marketing company overwhelmingly defeated the "old guard" in their attempt to gain control of the affairs of the Marketing company. The new directors are all pledged to work in harmony with the present executive committee and with this condition existing there is no doubt that the new executives can give their best efforts to the up building of the company.

Now that the atmosphere has been cleared it is up to the farmers to get behind the new board and bring this organization up to the point where it can get for the farmer what is due him.

The directors elected are as follows: R. F. Tuttle, Poplar Grove, Ill.; John Marks, Pocatonia, Ill.; H. L. Blighem, Arlington Heights, Ill.; R. J. Lagerechulte, Barrington, Ill.; John T. Kelly, Huntley, Ill.; H. E. McDonough, Hampshire, Ill.; Willard Darrell, Wauconda, Ill.; W. L. Doolittle, Grayslake, Ill.; John Hallett, Sycamore, Ill.; R. K. Overton, Shople, Wis.; Daniel LaBar, Delavan, Wis.; F. W. Roberts, Woodworth, Wis.; J. T. Buchanan, Hebron, Ind.; George Nordorf, Dyer, Ind.

The meeting was called to order at 10:15 by Chairman A. C. Stoen and the minutes of the last meeting read. The roll call was next in order and here was shown the strength of the two sides. The poll showed that the "old guard" was out numbered 3 to 1 in record of proxies.

After recess the meeting took on a more lively aspect. Just before the election of directors the rebuttal became very bitter and for a minute the "old guard" threw a bomb into the younger camp when a motion was made for the present directors to resign.

This was both unfair and unjust inasmuch as action of this nature could not be taken without first showing cause and preferring charges. At this time a strong attempt on the part of a Mr. Lumely of Woodstock to create harmony was of no avail and despite the fact that in proxies the "old guard" were outnumbered 3 to 1 they persisted in their attempt to disrupt the business of the meeting.

The meeting was adjourned at 6 to the Methodist church where the business of the meeting was continued and in harmony and the pre-mentioned directors elected.

The affairs of the Milk Producers is the next situation to be straightened out. As the matter now stands it looks as if the courts will have to fix this matter up.

The directors, before the regular meeting on the first Tuesday in February drew up a set of resolutions recommending a postponement of the meeting until the 20th. At the regular meeting the resolution was read and motion made and seconded in accept the resolution. The chairman called for the vote. After what appeared to be an even vote the chairman ruled the meeting adjourned to the 20th. Decision of this chair was immediately appealed but to no avail. Those objecting to the adjournment then went to the Methodist church and with a quorum elected the officers announced in last week's issue of this paper.

The present officers have issued a notice of the meeting to be held Monday, Feb. 20, 1922, at 10:00 a. m., Ball room, LaSalle hotel, Chicago. All members are urged to attend.

Notice to Milk Producers

Levi Waite, Old Settler, Is Dead

Levi Wait, one of the oldest and most esteemed early settlers of Lake county, died Saturday, February 11, at the home of his nephew, Douglas Wait, of Ingleside. Death came two days after his eighty-eighth birthday.

Mr. Wait was born in Ohio, but came to Lake County in 1849, having resided here ever since. He was one of the county's most successful farmers in the county up to the time of his retirement twenty years ago. His wife died about six years ago. Mr. and Mrs. Wait resided in Waukegan several years following his retirement.

DERING HOME IS WIPED OUT BY BLAZE

An alarm of fire was turned in shortly after ten o'clock last Saturday morning from the Lake Villa residence of J. K. Dering. By the time the Antioch department could reach the scene the flames were well under way, and although the Lake Villa, Fox Lake and Antioch departments did exceptionally good work they were unable to check the spread of the flames and the entire structure was soon demolished.

The Derings are spending the winter in New Mexico and Arthur Simpson is in charge of the estate and thought the origin of the flames were due to a defective flue.

The Dering estate is one of the most beautiful in this section of the state, upon which is one of the most expensive stable of horses, which have won numerous prizes at horse shows. The stables were not damaged.

Mr. Dering is expected home immediately to take charge of the situation. It is thought that the damage will amount to between $75,000 and $100,000.

Many people from Antioch and the lake region witnessed the fire, about 300 taking part in the bucket brigade before the arrival of the fire department.

High School Plays Gurnee Five Tomorrow Night

Antioch high school basketball team will meet the five representing Gurnee at the local high school gymnasium tomorrow (Friday) evening, while the town team will try to overcome the winning streak of the fast Union Grove five. These two games should prove very interesting and should receive the support of all local fans. The first game will start at 7:45 p. m.

Last Friday the high school team traveled to Burlington, Wis., and were handed the small end of 24 to 11 score. Burlington got the jump on the local lads and were never in danger of being overcome throughout the forty minutes of struggle. Bluff and Story played the stellar roles in the Burlington cast while Spafford and Haley played exceptionally well for Antioch. A well filled gymnasium witnessed the game.

Sunday School Boys Have Party Friday

Members of Mr. J. Wilson McGee's class of the Methodist church held a skating party at Silver Lake Friday evening. Milton Munford, Homer Tiffen, Ray Burnett and Robert Savage, with Mr. McGee composed the party. Weenies, hard boiled eggs and candy were served, and all had a very good time. Next Friday night the class will have a party in honor of Robert Savage, who with his family, will leave soon to make their home in Wyoming.

Couple Are Married, But Each to Another

A couple registering at one of the local hotels as Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Peters were taken into custody Saturday by detectives. The couple came from Matterson, Ill., in a Ford machine, the property of the man's father. The couple proved to be Mr. J. G. Peterson and a Mrs. Adam, both of Matterson. Each had left their homes and wedded mates and took with them Mrs. Adam's 5 year old daughter.

Relatives of Mrs. Adam came Saturday and persuaded her to return to Boone, Iowa, the home of her aunt. Detectives are keeping Peterson under surveillance and he will probably be prosecuted by the downstate authorities.

Mrs. McMurray to Speak Before Woman's Club

The program for the next meeting of the Woman's club is one of special interest to all women. Mr. Oscar M. McMurray will speak on "The Planning, Equipping and Decorating of a Simple Home."

Merely to announce such a program is to insure a good attendance for what woman is not interested in planning equipping and decorating her home?

The date is Feb. 20. The time 2:30. Hostesses, Mrs. D. B. Sabin, Mrs. A. Tiffany and Miss Mary Tiffany. A short business meeting will precede the program. Please note the change of time to 2:30 and be prompt.

A large audience gathered at the Gym Tuesday evening to witness the wedding of Tom Thumb. The little folks acquitted themselves well, as they always do, and the wedding was solemnized with only a few minor hitches. Every one in the audience looked as happy as the bride and groom and as carefree as the ushers and flower girls. Considering the fact that only two rehearsals were possible, the children certainly did well and we are proud of them all. Great credit is due the committee in charge of the entertainment, Mrs. Hughes, Mrs. Garland and Miss Dunham. Only those who have had experience in training children for public programs can understand the work involved. The club takes this occasion to publicly thank these ladies for the faithful, efficient work they so cheerfully did to insure the success of the little entertainment, also to the people of the community who so generously supported it we say Thank you—all.

ANTIOCH TO GET MOTOR FIRE TRUCK

Local Department Contracts for Watrous Engine at Tuesday's Meeting

WILL COST $3,500.00

After a thorough investigation by the officers of the Antioch Fire Department in the different makes of fire apparatus and their inability to decide on just what action they want to take, it was fortunate that a representative of the Watrous Fire Engine Company, Mr. Thomas Burns, was in town Tuesday night the night of the regular meeting of the fire department. Mr. Burns on hearing of the meeting, asked for hearing to show the advantages of their trucks.

His arguments appealed to members of the fire department so strongly that they then and there contracted for one of their triple combination fire fighters.

In view of the finances of the fire department it was thought advisable at this time to purchase a machine that would not put the company under to great an obligation. The expense of this machine, $3500, will not be to big a load at this time and from testimony given will probably answer the purpose of the village for the present. The truck, placed on a Ford chassis, is thought to be of greater advantage due to the easy excess of repair parts. Incidentally this truck will be found of greater advantage in making long runs over the country roads, due to its lightness.

In view of the fact that the members lack sufficient funds for the initial payment members are getting out a subscription list and are going to make a personal appeal in all the business men and property owners for a donation. There is no doubt that this first payment can be very easily met and Antioch will at last have adequate protection from loss by fire.

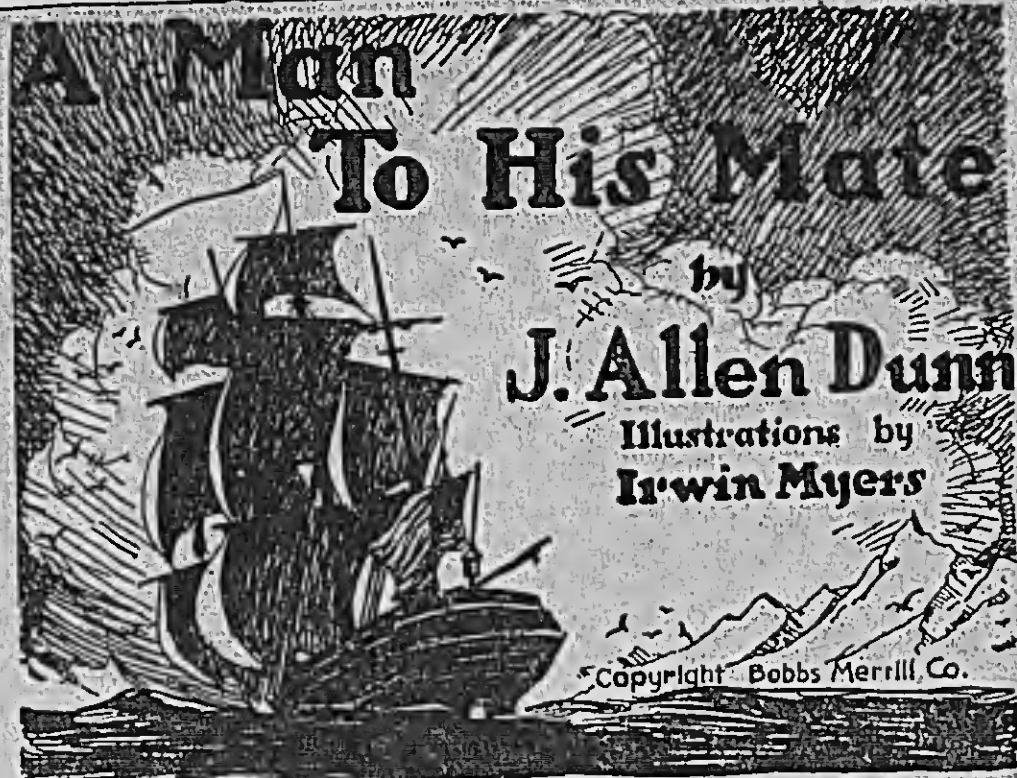

The fire department is to be highly commend on their action and it is hoped that the public will give them proper support in financing them in their venture.

Relates Story of Old Grass Lake Settlers

The following brief story as told by one Grass Lake pioneer may be of interest to the readers of the Antioch News:

Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Loof came from Germany and made their home on the farm now owned by Barney Trieger in 1868. Mrs. Loof saw three strange looking men pass one day but as she was not able to talk English could not talk to them. She afterwards learned they were Indians who had their camp on Indian Point. She carried eggs and butter to Antioch to trade, there being but two stores at the time. On the farm they raised rye, wheat and sorghum. One year they had more molasses than they wished to keep so Mr. Loof took her and a barrel of molasses to Waukegan. She shipped the molasses to Chicago and went to sell it. She says that she walked up one side of the street and down the other asking people to buy her molasses for which she charged 75 cents per gallon. This venture proving profitable, the next year she took two barrels for herself and two for Mr. Herman. These she was able to dispose of quickly, selling one whole barrel to one person.

Their mail was obtained from Antioch. At that time Mr. Eugene Smith carried mail between Waukegan and Antioch three times a week. Game was very plentiful. The lake was literally black with ducks and mud hens. Deer were also found on the west and south. She has seen a wilderness become a thickly settled community. The wild game has become scarce as the "honk" of the automobile has become familiar. Mr. Loof passed away a few years ago and Mrs. Loof is left, being one of the few pioneer people of Grass Lake who still remain.

"SCIATICA"

SYNOPSIS.—Littering on the San Francisco waterfront, John Rainey, newspaper reporter, is accosted by a giant blind man, who asks Rainey to lead him aboard the sailing schooner Karluk. The blind man tells Rainey he is an old shipmate of Captain Simms. In the cabin they find Captain Simms and a man named Carlsen. Simms recognizes the blind man, calling him Jim Lund. Lund accuses Simms of abandoning him, blind, on an ice floe, and denounces him. Simms denies the charge, but Lund refuses to be pacified. He declares his intention of accompanying the Karluk on its expedition north, where it is going in quest of a gold field which Lund has discovered. Peggy, Simms' daughter, is aboard, and defends her father. Carlsen, who is a physician, drags Rainey, awaking from his stupor. Rainey finds himself at sea. Carlsen informs him he has been kidnapped. He offers Rainey a share of the gold, and Rainey is forced to declare himself satisfied. Lund gives him a brief account of a former expedition of the Karluk, tells him he distrusts Carlsen, and suggests a "partnership." Rainey to act as Lund's "eyes."

"That makes all the more reason for us lookin' out for things, matey," he went on, almost in a whisper. "If they've played me once they may do it ag'in. And they've got the odds, nettin' aside my eyes. But I can turn a trick or two. Stick to me, an' I'll see you git yore whack."

"I'll have yore bunk changed. You'll come in with me. An' we'll put one an' one together. We'll be mates. Don't forget they fixed yore grog. I had nothin' to do with that. I may be stranded, but, if the tide rises—"

He set the clutch of his powerful fingers deep into Rainey's leg above the knee with a grip that left purple bruises there before the day was over.

"We two, matey," he said. "Now you an' me'll have a lot of stuff that ain't doped."

He moved about the little cabin with an astounding freedom and sureness, chuckling as he handled bottles and glasses and measured out the whisky and water.

"When you're blind," he said, ramming his pipe full of black tobacco, "they's other things comes to ye. I know the run of this ship, blindfold, you might say. I could go aloft in a plover, or steer her. More grog?"

But Rainey abstained after the first glass, though Lund went on lowering the bottle without apparent effect.

"So you're a bit of a sailor?" the giant asked presently. "An' a scholar. You can navigate, I make no doubt?"

"I hope to get a chance to learn on the trip," answered Rainey. "I know the general principles, but I've never tried to use a sextant. I'm going to get the skipper to help me out. Or Carlsen."

"Carlsen! What in h—l does a doctor know about navigation?" demanded Lund.

Rainey told him what the girl had said, and the giant grunted.

"I have my doubts whether they'll ever help ye," he said. "Wish I could. But it 'ud be hard without my eyes. An' I've got no sextant an' no book o' tables. Too bad."

His disappointment seemed keen, and Rainey could not fathom it. Why had both Lund and Carlsen seemed to lay stress on this matter? Why was the doctor relieved and Lund disappointed at his ignorance?

CHAPTER III.

Target Practice.

The Karluk was an eighty-five-ton schooner, Gloster Fisherman type, with a length of ninety and a beam of twenty-five feet. Her enormous stretch of canvas, spread to the limit on all possible occasions by Captain Simms, was offset by the pendulum of lead that made up her keel, and she could slide through the seas at twelve knots on her best point of sailing—reaching—the wind abt her beam.

After Rainey had demonstrated at the wheel that he had the mastery of her and had shown that he possessed sea-legs, Captain Simms appointed him second mate.

"We don't carry one as a rule," the skipper said. "But I'll give you a rating, and the right to eat in the cabin." He had not brought up the subject of Rainey's kidnapping, and Rainey let it go. There was no use arguing about the inevitable. The rating and the cabin fare seemed offered as an apology, and he was willing to accept it.

Carlsen acted as first mate, and Rainey had to acknowledge him efficient. He fancied the man must have been a ship's surgeon, and so picked up his seamanship. A sailor named Hansen was promoted to acting quartermaster, and relieved Rainey. Carlsen spent most of his time attendant on the girl or chatting with the hunters, with whom he soon appeared on terms of intimacy.

The hunters esteemed themselves above the sailors, as they were, in intelligence and earning capacity.

There were six hunters and twelve sailors, outside of a general roustabout and butt named "Sandy," who cleaned up the forecabin and the hunters' quarters, where they messed apart, and helped Tamada, the cook, in the galley with his pots and dishes.

"Cordin' to the agreement," Lund said to Rainey, "the gold's to be split into a hundred shares. One for each sailorman, an' they chip in for the boy. Two for the hunters, two for the cook, four for Bergstrom, the first mate, who's dled at sea. Twenty for 'ship's share.' Fifty shares to be split between Simms an' me."

"What's the 'ship's share'?" asked Rainey.

"Represents capital investment. Matter of fact, it belongs to the gal," said Lund. "Simms gave her the Karluk. It's to her name with the insurance."

"Then he and his daughter get forty-five shares, and you only twenty-five?"

"You got it right," grinned Lund. "Simms is no philanthropist. It wa'n't so easy for me to git easy one to go in with me, son. I a'd the first man to come trallin' in with news of a strike. An' I had nothin' to show for it. Matter of fact, Honest Simms was the only one who didn't loaf at me outright."

"An' we had a hard an' tight agreement drawn up on paper, signed, witnessed, an' recorded. 'Course it holds him as well as it holds me, but he gits the long end of that stick. When I read, or got it read to me, in the Seattle News-Courier, that the Karluk was listed as 'Arrived' in San Francisco, it was all I could do to git car fare an' grub money. If I hadn't bin blind, an' some of 'em half-way human to'd a man with his lights out, I'd never have raised it."

"But I'm here an' I've got some say-so. One thing, you're goin' to git Bergstrom's share. I don't give a d—n where the doctor comes in. If he marries the gal he'll git her twenty shares, anyway. Though he ain't married her yet. And I ain't through with Simms yet," he added, with an emphasis that was a trifle grim, Rainey thought.

"It's me an' you ag'in the rest of 'em, seems to me, Rainey. The doc's aimin' to be the Big Boss aboard this schooner. He's got the skipper but-faloid. But not me, not by a jugful."

"An' That's the Sort of Woman I'm Lookin' For."

He slammed his big fist against the side of the bunk so viciously that it seemed to jar the cabin. The blow was typical of the man, Rainey decided. He felt for Lund not exactly a liking, but an attraction, a certain compelled admiration. The giant was elemental, with a driving force inside him that was dynamic, magnetic. What a magnificent pirate he would have made, thought Rainey, looking at his magnificent proportions and considering the crude philosophies that cropped out in his talk.

"I'm in life for the loot of it,

Rainey. Lund declared. "Food an' drink to tickle my tongue an' fill my belly, the woman I happen to want, an' bein' able to buy ennythin' I set my fancy on. The answer to that is gold. With it you can buy most ennythin'. Not all women, I'll grant you that. Not the kind of woman I'd want for a steady mate. That's one thing I've found out can't be bought, my son, the honor of a good woman. An' that's the sort of woman I'm lookin' for."

"This is my gold, an' I'm goin' to handle it. If enny one tries to swizzle me out of it I'm goin' to swizzle back, an' you can lay to that. Not forgettin' them that stands by me."

Between Lund and Simms there existed a sort of armed truce. No open reference was made to the desertion of Lund on the floor. But Rainey knew that it rankled in Lund's mind. The five, Peggy Simms, her father, Carlsen, Lund and Rainey, ostensibly messed together, but Rainey's duties generally kept him on deck until Carlsen had sufficiently completed his own meal to relieve him. By that time the girl and the captain had left the table.

Lund invariably waited for Rainey. Tamada kept the food hot for them.

To Rainey, Tamada seemed the hardest worked man aboard ship. He had three messes to cook and he was busy from morning until night, efficient, tireless and even-tempered. The crew, though they acknowledged his skill, were, Californians, either by birth or adoption, and the racial prejudice against the Japanese was apparent.

A week of good wind was followed by dirty weather. The persistence and increasing opposition of the storm seemed to have a corresponding effect upon Captain Simms.

He grew daily more irritable and morose, even to his daughter. Only the doctor appeared able to get along with him on easy terms, and Rainey noticed that, to Carlsen, the skipper seemed conciliatory even to deference.

Peggy Simms watched her father with worried eyes. The curious, turkish look of his tanned skin grey until the flesh seemed continually dry and of an earthy color; his lips peeled, and more than once he shook as if with a chill.

On the eleventh day out, Rainey went below in the middle of the afternoon for his seaboots. In the main cabin he found Simms seated in a chair with his daughter leaning over him, speaking to her in a harsh, complaining voice.

"No, you can't do a thing for me," he was saying. "It's this sciatica. I've got to get Carlsen."

As Rainey passed through to his own little stateroom neither of them noticed him, but he saw that the captain was shivering, his hands picking almost convulsively at the tablecloth.

"Where's Carlsen, curse him!" Rainey heard through his cabin partition. "Tell him I can't stand this any longer. He's got to help me. Got to. Got to."

As Rainey appeared, walking heavily in his boots, the girl looked up. Her father was slumped in his chair, his face buried in his fisted arms. The girl glanced at him doubtfully, apparently uncertain whether to go herself to find Carlsen or stay with her father.

"Anything I can do, Miss Simms? Your father seems quite ill."

The hesitation of the girl even to speak to him was very plain to Rainey. Suddenly she threw up her chin.

"Kindly find Doctor Carlsen," she ordered, rather than requested. "Ask him to come as soon as he can. I—"

She turned uncertainly to her father. "Can I help you to get him into the cabin?" asked Rainey.

She thanked him with lips, not eyes, and he assisted her to shift the almost helpless man into his room and bunk. He was like a stuffed sack between them, save that his body twitched. While Rainey took most of the weight, he marveled at the strength of the slender girl and the way in which she applied it. Simms seemed to have fainted, to be on the verge of unconsciousness or even utter collapse. Rainey felt his wrist, and the pulse was almost imperceptible.

"I'll get the doctor immediately," he said.

"Mighty funny sort of sciatica," Rainey told himself as he hurried forward. He knew where Carlsen was, in the hunters' cozy quarters, playing poker.

"The skipper's ill," said Rainey. "No pulse. Almost unconscious."

Carlsen raised his eyebrows. "Didn't know you were a physician," he said. "Just one of his spells. I'll finish this hand. Too good to lay down. The skipper can wait for once."

The hunters grinned as Carlsen took his time to draw his cards, make his bets and eventually win the pot on three queens.

"I wonder what your real game is?" Rainey asked himself as he affected to watch the play. According to his own announcement Carlsen was deliberately neglecting the father of the girl he was to marry and at the same time slighting the captain to his own men. Carlsen drew in his chips and leisurely made a note of the amount.

The captain did not make his appearance for that day, the next, or the next. Carlsen kept his own counsel, and Peggy Simms spent most of her time in the main cabin with her eyes always roving to her father's door. Carlsen was the apparent controller of the schooner. Lund was quick to sense this.

"We got to block that Carlsen's game," he said to Rainey. "There's a nigger in the woodpile somewhere an' you an' me got to uncover him, matey, afore we reach Bering strait, or you an' me'll finish this trip squatin' on the rocks of one of the Four Mountain islands makin' faces at the gulls."

"I wish you 'ud git under the skin of that Jap. No use tryin' to git in with the crew or the hunters. They're ag'in both of us—leastwise the hunters are. The heads don't count. They're jest plain hash."

Lund spoke with an absolute contempt of the sailors that was characteristic of the man.

"They don't look on us two as mascots," went on Lund. "But to git back to that Jap. Forewarned is forearmed. He ain't over an' above liked, but they've got used to him goin' back an' forth with their grub, an' they sort of despise him for a yellow-skinned coole."

"Now, Tamada ain't no coole. I know Japs. He's a cut above his job. An' there ain't much goin' on that Tamada ain't wise to. See if you can't get next to him. Trouble is he's too d—n neutral. He knows he's safe, becuz he's cook an' a d—n good one. But he's wise to what Carlsen's playin' at."

"Carlsen don't care for man, woman, God or the devil. Neither do I."

"The Skipper's Ill," said Rainey. "No Pulse, Almost Unconscious."

he concluded. "An' I've got a card or two up my sleeve."

The storm blew out, and there came a spell of pleasant weather. Simms was still confined to his cabin.

Except for observations and the details of navigation, Carlsen left the schooner to Rainey. They were well off the coast, out of the fogs, apparently alone upon the lonely ocean that ran sparkling to the far horizon. It was warm, there was little to do, the sailors, as well as the hunters, spent most of their time lounging on the deck.

Lund hung over the rail, smoking, or paced the deck, always close to Rainey. The manner in which he went about the ship was almost uncanny. Except that his arms were generally ahead of him when he moved, his hands, with their woolly covering of red hair, lightly touching boom or rope or rail, he showed no hesitation, made no mistakes. When the breeze was steady he would even take the wheel and steer perfectly by the "feel of the wind" on his cheek, the ship of it in the canvas, or the creak of the rigging to tell him if he was holding to the course. And he took an almost childish delight in protruding his prowess as helmsman.

The booms were stayed out against swinging in stays and the roll of the sea, and Lund strode back and forth behind Rainey, who had the wheel. The hunters were grouped about Carlsen, who, seated on the skylight, was telling them something at which they guffawed at frequent intervals.

"Spinna!" then some of his smutty yarns," growled Lund, bailing in his pronouncement. "Bad for discipline, an' bad for us. He's the sort of dove-feathered bird that wouldn't give those claps a first-look ashore. Gettin' in solid with 'em that way is a bad steer. You can't handle a man you make a pal of, when he ain't yore bunk."

"Captain Simms seems to believe in him," answered Rainey. He wondered how much of Carlsen's increasing dominance over the skipper Lund had noticed.

"Simms is Carlsen's dog!" exploded Lund. "The doc's got somethin' on him, mark me. Carlsen's a bad egg an' when he hatches, you'll see a buzzard. An' you wait till he's needed as a doctor on somethin' that takes more'n a few kind words or a tick out a bottle."

Hansen came aft, offering to take the wheel.

"They bane goin' to shute at targets," he said. "Meester Carlsen he put up prizes. For rifle an' shotgun. Thought you might like to watch it, sir."

"That was splendid, Mr. Rainey! Wonderful! It was brave of you!"

SUNDAY SERVICES:

Sunday School 9:45
Morning Service 11:00
Epworth League 7:00
Evening Service 7:45

Bertha James Gilbert, the widely known lyric soprano, will sing at the eleven o'clock service at the church the coming Sunday morning. The speaker at this service will be Lena B. Mathes A. M., B. D., President of The Federation of Church Women of the whole Chicago area. She comes in the interest of the great work of helping to save this vicinity and the country at large from the traffic in the souls and bodies of human beings and the maintenance of order and the upholding of law against lawlessness. Her message is a vital one which every citizen should hear.

The evening subject the coming Sunday will be "I Will Obey."

Last Sunday morning the sermon was on "Thy Word Is Truth." The necessity of having a great hunger for the truth was stressed. It was shown from the words of Christ that He taught that every man's character and final destiny depends on his attitude toward the truth. That he who is careless about the exact truth becomes tangled in a maze of doubts and hesitations and shifting and guesses and uncertainties and becomes a pitifully helpless slave to lack of exact and positive knowledge; while he who is determined, at any cost to find out just exactly what the truth is in all important matter finds himself in possession of reality, knowledge, certainty, which makes him a free man, and an efficient man.

This was applied to our religious life, all were urged to be more deeply determined to search more earnestly and study harder to find out what is the real truth about religious matters and never to be satisfied to take any of our religious ideas or mere guess or hear say, but to go straight to the sources of real knowledge and study until we have reached definite reality; and having discovered just what the truth really is, to obey the truth in every item and to the last ditch. Absolute, unswerving loyalty to the truth we do know and can learn was held up as the only possible attitude for all Christians.

This was followed by the demonstration that the real source of exact knowledge of religious things in The Bible and that real Christians are always close, and earnest daily students of the Word of God, digging to find what is the truth as to how they must live and what they must do, and that they always are scrupulously careful to make their daily conduct and behavior and practice tally with the exact knowledge they get from their intense study of the Word.

Attention was called to the great campaign now on in the entire Methodist church among its four and a half million members throughout the world for enlisting the whole membership in the titling legion, following the plan of this Church and the requirements God has revealed in His word to lay aside one tenth of the net income always for religious work and put it into the regular channels of the advancement of His Kingdom through the Church.

All comrades of the Morning Watch are being reminded of the precious fifteen minutes or more each day of close fellowship with God through prayer and the study of his Word.

Radio Message Announces Cut in Fordsons

The first announcement of the big cut in the price of the Fordson tractor was made through Mr. Henry Ford's radio message Thursday evening, January 26, from our Dearborn Radio station to Ford dealers attending a Fordson Tractor Industrial Show in Cleveland, Ohio. The context of his talk, which was very plainly heard in Cleveland and surrounding districts, is quoted below:

"It is certainly wonderful to sit here in my office and say a few words of greeting to you Ford dealers of the Cleveland territory. The radio is an outstanding tribute to man's inventive genius. They say there is nothing new under the sun, but are constantly inventing new things, every day bringing some big improvement over the previous day's methods.

"Manufacturing operations have undergone some wonderful revolutionary changes during the past few years. We are all familiar with the big improvements in transportation methods, but the oldest industry has been the most backward in the acceptance or adoption of the new and up-to-date methods of doing things, and that is the farming industry. Being a farmer, I am vitally interested in all farm improvements, and with this in mind, I have spent years of time and millions in money in the development of the Fordson tractor, which I really think is one of the biggest possible helps to profitable farming.

"As a general thing, the farmers have bettered their financial condition during the past eighteen months, but the production costs of farm products are still too close to selling prices to allow fair margins of profit. What the farmer must do to put his business on a paying basis is to lower the cost of planting, cultivating and harvesting of his crops. This alone will increase his profits, and with this thought in mind it has been our constant aim to lower the price of the Fordson so that every farmer in the land could afford to own one. It is a pleasure, therefore, to announce through you Ford dealers that we have today decided that the tractor price should again be reduced, and in considering a reduction, naturally my thought has been to make it possible for the largest number of farmers to share in the benefits to be derived through the use of our tractor, and consequently effective tomorrow, January 27, 1922, the new price of the Fordson tractor will be $395, F. O. B. Detroit. This is a cut of $230 off the present price, and while in making this big reduction we have taken upon ourselves a gigantic task in the reduction of manufacturing costs, still that task, in my opinion, is not larger than the farmer's problem of today, and I am glad to do my part in bringing about a period of increased prosperity for the farmer. Your part is to carry this message to the farmer, thereby enabling him to produce more with less cost and shorter hours.

"I am glad to have had this opportunity of talking with you and you have my best wishes."

We believe you will appreciate the publicity value of Mr. Ford's message. It was directed not only to the Cleveland dealers, but to every farmer in the United States, and to everybody who is interested in the farmer and his influence on economic conditions.

State to Enforce Dimming Law

Declaring that failure to comply with state automobile headlight regulations is responsible for a large percentage of the accidents on the public highways, Secretary of State Louis L. Emmerson yesterday launched a campaign to secure enforcement of the law. He is emphasizing particularly the provisions regarding dimming.

Automobile investigators appointed by him have been instructed to use the power given them by the last legislature and make arrests wherever they find violations of the law. He has also sent a letter to sheriffs and police officers throughout the state calling their attention to the provisions of the law and asking their co-operation in its strict enforcement.

"The state law provides," Secretary Emmerson said yesterday, "that every automobile must be equipped with two lights in front and a red light in the rear, which must be lighted when the car is in operation any time from one hour after sunset to sunrise. The headlights must be strong enough to be visible for a distance of at least 200 feet and unless equipped with an anti-glare device or lenses which prevent a glaring or dazzling light, they must be dimmed or extinguished when within 250 feet of an automobile approaching from the opposite direction. No car must be parked at night without a light in front and one in the rear, except where permitted by provision of city ordinances.

"Statistics show that hundreds of accidents happen every year through failure to observe this law. The most common offense is failure to dim glaring lights on approaching another automobile. In many communities this provision of the law is almost totally ignored and practically nowhere is it consistently observed.

"I am determined, now that I have been given power to enforce laws, to do everything I can with the limited number of inspectors at my command to remedy this condition and I believe local authorities will co-operate heartily in this effort."

In the letter to the sheriffs and police officers, Secretary Emmerson says:

"A strict enforcement of the traffic laws in the state will reduce accidents on the highways at least 90 per cent."

Proclamation to Protect Illinois Crops

A Proclamation

Whereas, the department of agriculture has reported to me that an insect injurious to corn and other staple crops, known as the European corn borer, (pyrausta nubilalis), not now or heretofore known to be present in this state, is probably present in the states of Hampshire, Massachusetts, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Michigan, and is probably present in the states of Rhode Island, Connecticut and Maine, and that there is danger of carrying this insect into Illinois on certain products shipped from said states into Illinois:

Now, therefore, I, Len Small, governor of the state of Illinois, by virtue of the power and authority conferred on me by law, do hereby prohibit and declare unlawful from and after the fifth day of January, 1922, the importation into or within the state of Illinois from the said states of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Michigan, corn on the cob, and any part of the corn plant except the seed shelled, broom corn, sorghums and sudan grass, except the seeds thereof; and do furthermore prohibit the shipment into or within the state of Illinois from the counties of Rockingham, New Hampshire, and Barnstable, Bristol, Essex, Middlesex, Norfolk, Plymouth and Suffolk, Massachusetts, of celery, green beans in the pod, beets with tops, spinach, rhubarb, oat and rye straw as such or when used as packing, all cut flowers, or entire plants of chrysanthemum, aster, cosmos, zinnia, hollyhock and cut flowers or entire plants of gladiolus and dahlia, except the bulbs thereof, without stems, unless the same have been inspected by a state or federal inspector and are accompanied by a certificate of such inspector, showing that they are free from the said

European corn borer and do hereby proclaim and direct that any shipment of the above mentioned states, coming into the state of Illinois from the said states and counties which do not comply with the provisions of this proclamation relating thereto must be destroyed or returned to the original consignee, as the owners may elect; and do hereby make proclamation thereof to all persons concerned, especially admonishing all officers of the state of Illinois charged with enforcement of the laws of this state, to be diligent in preventing and punishing the acts herein prohibited.

This proclamation supersedes and annuls all former proclamations on this subject.

By the governor,

Whence of the British Guinea. The mystery of that dreadful uncolored milt of burt in England known as the "guinea," which is abstracted from the pocket in place of the pound, very much to the damage of the metric and all other systems, seems to have been solved at last. Now the pound is 20 shillings and the guinea is 21 shillings, so that it is cherished by hotels and lodging houses because it is divisible by seven.

SMART ALL-DAY DRESSES FOLLOW LATEST MODES

THE simple and smart all-day dress that can hold its own in any company has won the answering devotion of women of affairs. It is an unpretentious aristocrat that has an obliging way of fitting in with any background.

The all-day dress may not indulge in too many vacancies, but it follows every dictate of fashion with just the right amount of reserve. It agrees to longer skirts, but not to the point of inconvenience. It has established cordial relations with the unusual sleeve and the uneven hem line. It has at least a speaking acquaintance with all the innovations in the mode.

A line example of the all-day dress appears at the left of these two shown here. Of necessity it remains as simple as possible in line, but it is quietly elaborated by an all-over decoration placed with an artistry that is flattering. This dress is made of dark blue velvet with black satin for its small chemise and collar and employs black silk braid in its decoration.

A very new design dares to invite comparisons and appears in the dress at the right. It is one of several interesting offerings in which an overdress of cloth, open at the sides, is worn over an undergarment, which may be a skirt, a slip, or trousers. In this case an underslip of black satin is chosen and it is shorter than the overdress.

Tom Mix's Horse to Pose For a Statue

To most people, a horse is just a horse.

Starting with the tireless animal that carried Paul Revere on his midnight ride, and going down the line from "Blue Skin," that carried Washington at Monmouth, and "Sorrel," that bore the silent "Stonewall" Jackson, to the steeds of the present day, American horses have kept pace with American men in deeds of heroism.

And so it is with "Tony," the prized horse of Tom Mix, the Fox star, who is coming to the Majestic theatre, on Wednesday, 22, in the Max Brand story "Trailin'." The intelligence of this animal, Tony's loyalty to his "boss" and his willingness to respond to any demand made upon him, no matter how perilous, have gone far toward preserving the life of Tom Mix in making many of his pictures that have set a new standard for American manhood. And because Tony is all that the west expects in a horse—and that means everything—the real men of the West have planned to erect a fine statue to the Western horse using Tony as the model.

In Memoriam

In sad and loving memory of our dear mother, Eliza Ann Brown, who passed away twenty five years ago today, Feb. 16, 1897.

Dearest wife and loving mother, We have missed your presence here. For our home was filled with sadness, When our Savior called you there.

Our lips can't express how we loved you, Our hearts cannot tell what to say; God only knows how we miss you And think of you day after day.

Who wore a crown of patience? For the years she struggled on. These hands that rest forever Were the hands that made our home.

Mother, we sure are lonely How we miss your loving face. But you left us to remember None on earth can take your place. George Brown and family.

Grade School Notes

Sam Levinson

The 5th and 6th grades learned to do block lettering in the Art class Monday.

Roberta Lewis, Dorothy Bregan and Agnes Peterson have been absent on account of illness.

The seventh and eighth grades are completing their maps of South America and Asia.

Dr. Markley, the state medical officer, gave us a short talk on small pox and how to prevent it.

In connection with the study of birds, the teacher of the 5th and 6th grades is reading a chapter each day from "The Burgess Bird Book for Children."

The pictures now being studied by the 5th and 6th grades are "Potato Planting by Millet" and "Washington Crossing the Delaware" by Leutze.

The seventh and eighth graders attended the lectures at the High School last Thursday and Friday and enjoyed them very much.

The seventh and eighth grades wrote a composition on "The Life of Abraham Lincoln" last Friday, and some of them are very good.

Myrtle Norman wrote to D. C. Ridgely of the Illinois State Normal University for information about Jesse Fell, one of the men we are studying about in Illinois History.

Mr. Simpson visited school last week.

The seventh and eighth grades drew names for Valentine day Monday.

For the following few weeks we are to do lettering in Art.

A Valentine box was enjoyed by the fifth and sixth graders Tuesday afternoon.

Remember that you are invited to attend the meeting of the Parent-Teacher association on Thursday, February 23, at 7:30 p. m.

Mrs. Alice Hyatt Mather is to talk, the Grade School orchestra will play and a playlet will be given by the seventh and eighth grade pupils. The exhibit of school work in each room will be of interest. Refreshments will be served.

Why drag around feeling half sick and no account all the time when you can get Tanlac? S. H. Reeves.

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our sincere thanks to all for the love and sympathy shown us during our recent great bereavement in the passing away of our wife and mother also for the beautiful floral tribute.

She Failed.

Janie was returned from the Home of the Feeble-Minded to the Orphans' home, as the doctor's examination had proved her merely "subnormal." Said Janie to Anna in a burst of confidence and gossip: "Inne was sent away to be an idiot, but she couldn't pass and had to come back."—Harper's.

Lines to Be Remembered.

In the course of their development all creatures have become fitted to their surroundings. Man is adapted to the world he lives in. Its processes ordinarily give him satisfaction. Even when they bring frustration and sorrow, the facts may be faced with nobility of soul, and with courage, through the spiritual resources at his command.—Exchange.

Elephant's Reflective Powers.

John Burroughs says that while an elephant may not think, he at least reflects. He cites to prove this the fact that the elephant covers himself with mud to keep insects from biting, and uses branches like a fan to brush flies away from him.

Because of the number of requests from farmers in that vicinity, merchants of Barron, Wis., have agreed not to sell butter substitutes for a year. The farmers have asked that the people of Barron eat creamery and dairy butter made in the county and thus aid the farmers and also home industries. The merchants have asked farmers to refrain from buying butter substitutes after they have sold home made butter.

Damage estimated at $100,000 was done by fire which last week destroyed the building owned by R. G. Evans at the corner of Central avenue and First street. The J. B. Garnet Dry Goods Co., which occupied the first floor of the building was the chief loser. The Y. W. C. A. rooms were demolished and about $3,000 damage was done to the Highland Park hotel. The Merry Butler shoe store and the Charles L. Gemier grocery sustained some loss due to the smoke and water.

Thieves got away with about $400 worth of merchandise from the Spring Grove general store last week, entrance being gained by prying open the front doors of the building. According to John Karls, manager of the store, the robbery occurred between two and four o'clock Saturday morning.

Lake County Soils

Beginning a series of articles on the soils of this section.

If the age of soil can be reckoned in terms of young and old the surface of Lake county to a depth of 100 to 200 feet and in some places 400 feet, is only an infant in years compared with the soil in parts of southern Illinois.

The Lake Michigan glacier, one of the lost of the glaciers, plowed its way over Lake county hundreds and probably thousands of years after a similar process had pulverized the hard crust of the earth further south and ground it up to a fineness that would permit plants to grow and find lodgement for their roots.

The process of preparing this soil for plants, then animals and finally human beings was pretty slow as we measure time now.

The present average span of life or even say seventy or eighty years would have shown little change in the process of soil making.

Geologists tell us that this glacial formation of which there is undeniable evidence, accounts for much of the difference in elevations also the difference in fineness of soil particles and even the deposit here and there of sand and gravel that help make good roads and concrete structures.

Imagine a huge, thick sheet of ice gradually pushing its way over the crust of the earth perhaps moving only a few inches or feet a day, forced constantly onward by the great weight of piled up ice behind.

It moved in much the same way that glaciers do now in the far north where the edges are pushed out into the sea and there break off forming the icebergs that float south into the Atlantic ocean and finally melt and disappear.

The sheet of ice that covered Lake county was probably similar to the ones that push these great chunks of ice out into the ocean. Their slow motion and great weight scooped up rocks and stones and ground them together leaving some of the material fine which we call clay, some a little coarser called silt and sand and the coarsest of all which we call gravel. The temperature finally changed and the big bulk of ice began to melt. The material that had been carried along or was mixed with the ice was dropped when the ice changed to water.

These heaps and piles of material formed our hills. The rolling characteristic of parts of the county is due almost entirely to deposits from this glacier.

The water that trickled out of the melting ice united in streams and washed out, gullies here and there, perhaps cutting up a long hill into several smaller ones and probably forming some of our present water courses. Fine particles of soil were washed and carried away leaving coarse sand and gravel behind.

Large stones and boulders released from the melting ice were dropped here and there. They may have been carried many miles by the slow moving mass of ice.

This was all a very rough process and it took centuries of freezing and thawing, wind and rain to smooth off the surface and further disintegrate the rocks and stones in the formation of soil.

Seeds That Grow

Vitality and freedom from noxious weed seeds are the two first considerations in selecting seeds for planting.

The state department of agriculture at Springfield will analyze seed samples free of charge and return you the result of the analysis showing the purity of the sample and give the names of weed seed present, if any. In fact it is necessary to have seed so analyzed before offering it for sale.

Time can be very profitably spent now in looking over the supply of seed. Test them for germination and examine for purity.

Care in seed selection will bring larger yields per acre at no additional expense.

"Homespun Folks"

Coming to Crystal

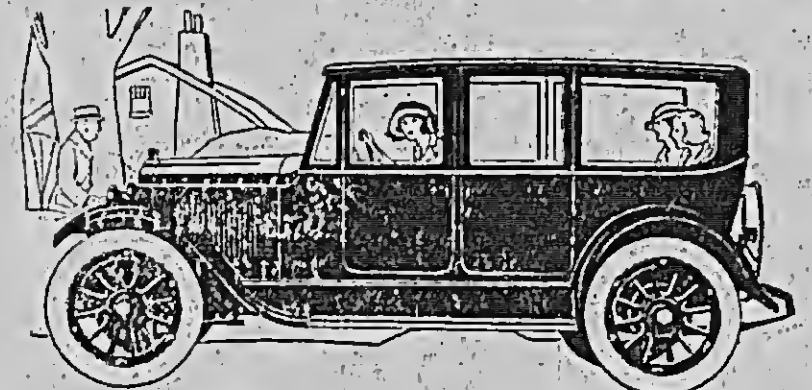

There is something vitally American in the fibre of "Homespun Folks," Thomas H. Ince's first contribution to the releases of Associated Producers, Inc., which is being shown at the Crystal theatre on Saturday. Like all big American successes it stands for clean romance and wholesome after-tastes. The audience will leave the theatre feeling better for having seen the picture, a tribute to the art of Thomas A. Ince.

Human interest fairly oozes out of the drama. The acting of Lydia Knott as the mother and Charles Moiles as the father, is superb, while young Lloyd Hughes exemplifies all that is best in young American manhood. The characterization smacks of real life. There is nothing studied about the action.

Animals and humans alike play important parts in this rural epic "Homespun Folks" will live, just as "The Old Homestead" will live and just as "Way Down East" has lived. It is vitally real, and its appeal is as universal as the appeal of motherhood. Every class, and creed will enjoy "Homespun Folks." It is the heart drama of 10,000 small towns and 60,000,000 plain people.

CELEBRATES 25TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

T. A. Savage Family Honored by Large Gathering of Friends and Relatives

HOLD MOCK MARRIAGE

Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Savage celebrated their silver wedding Friday, February 17. A large circle of friends, neighbors and relatives were present. The esteem in which Mr. and Mrs. Savage are held by all was more than evident by the many beautiful and costly gifts received.

After a bountiful repast a mock sermon was performed by Mr. George White to the great amusement of all present. The ceremony used in this little skit was as follows:

Whereas, it has pleased these two mortals to live together for twenty-five years, and it has pleased everybody else, it is altogether fitting and proper that we take this opportunity to reconsecrate and rededicate these two lives to each other.

Now Myrtle, do you promise to continue to look after Austin in the same manner as of the past quarter century, exert your right hand of power judiciously and feed him always everything his appetite desires.

And Austin, do you promise to continue to live in faithful obedience to all commands of your loving wife, provide all the money she needs to spend, feed the chickens, light the fire, carry in the wood, pump the water, empty the ashes, help wash and all other duties that a kind husband must do to show his appreciation of the good care and tutelage of a woman.

Before breaking these solemn vows consider well your chances for future happiness.

Myrtle, you may not find as good a provider and servant in another choice, and Austin, you might not find as good a cook and housekeeper, saying nothing of finding anyone else that would have you.

And now, we who are gathered today to do honor to this twenty-fifth anniversary of your wedded life, do present you with a little loving cup to show our high esteem of your friendship and express our best wishes for many more years of happy wedded life amongst us as friends and neighbors.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kennedy, Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Hollenback, Mr. and Mrs. David Pullen, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Crawford, Mr. and Mrs. George White, Mr. and Mrs. Chris Paulsen and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Taft and son, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Grimm, Miss Elizabeth Webb, Mrs. Inez Ames, Miss Annie Dorsey, Mrs. Jeanette Wells, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Savage and children, Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Wells and family, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Paddock, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Ames and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gillings, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Webb, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wells and children, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Savage, of Evanston, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Man and son, of Hebron, Mrs. Emily Mann and Miss Jane Mann, Mort Savage, Miss Irene Savage and Mr. Harry Walker.

Soo Line Trains Stalled

Due to Severe Storms

Train service on the Soo line has been very much crippled and little hope for better service for the next few days as Wisconsin is being visited by one of the worst winter storms in history. All telegraph and telephone service is completely out of order and Soo line trains traveling north have been tied up from twelve to fifteen hours. Fond du Lac has not been able to give clearance to the Duluth or St. Paul trains due here at 7:01 and 8:00 last night.

The Sells Dairy company of Chicago has leased the milk plant formerly operated by the Marketing company at Lake Villa. The new company is equipping the plant to the extent of $20,000 in machinery, which will consist of pasteurizing, separating and butter making machinery. An artificial ice plant will be installed.

The plant at the present time is handling around 14,000 pounds of milk and it is expected to be able to handle near 30,000 pounds.

Mr. Wagner, of Green Bay, Wis., is the buttermaker and O. N. Wilton is outside solicitor.

Town Topics

Teacher to Sunday School, class— "Next Wednesday is the 22nd of February, what important occurrence is on that day." Only one boy was able to answer, and his hand was up in less than a second.

"Well, —, what is it," said teacher.

"Masquerade dance at the Opera house."

Fourteen gun lengths east, and twenty slings south of the News office is located camp Wm. S. Hart Jr. The camp is some six or eight feet under the sod, and only members of the organization have any idea how long this underground camp may be.

Late Monday afternoon the prairie surrounding the camp was deserted and it was the intention of one of the enemies (all regular cowboy outfits have enemies) to enter the unknown pit. Coming across the land astride a pony, he was able to get within about half an acre of the entrance when eighteen little freckled faces appeared above the surface of Mother Earth and started in pursuit of the villain. After giving a rider of the chestnut colored steed a real "trimming," thirty-six little feet started back for the cave and in less than 30 seconds they had all vanished as if the earth had swallowed them.

They are outfitted, some as Indians, others as cowboys, and a few less fortunate, have to wear "regular" clothes. Some have bows and arrows, others have wooden swords, wooden guns and still others have wooden daggers.

So mothers, if you are wondering where your wandering boy is tomorrow after school, approach within sixteen lengths of a wooden dagger, whistle sharply three times and the chances are your boy will crawl to the far end of the cave and you'll see almost every other kid in the village.

R. A. Paddock Writes From Leesburg, Fla.

R. A. Paddock, formerly of Antioch, who now resides in Wilmette, Ill., and is spending the winter at Leesburg, Florida, in a letter to Mr. Jacob Savage, writes some very interesting paragraphs, among which are the following:

We had wild duck for dinner today. Lewis (Savage) and I went out and got sixteen Ringbills and could have had more, but we thought we had enough for one time. We can go out and get that many any time we want them, the same way with fish. They are more than plentiful.

My next door neighbor has just dug his potatoes and is now fixing the ground over again to plant three acres of cucumbers.

I have been working almost ever since I've been here building a new motor boat and I've just about finished it. It's thirty feet long, all varnished up until it shines like a mirror, carpet on the floor, all brass trimmings and a twelve cylinder motor that will drive her as fast as an express train.

House Peters Has Big Role in Glum Picture

Possibly no other player in all film-dom was so ideally suited as House Peters for the character of John Colbertson in J. Parker Read, Jr.'s adaptation of Stewart Edward White's novel "The Leopard Woman," starring Louise Glum. Mr. Peters was engaged by special arrangement to play the important role in this Associated Producers' release, which comes to the Crystal theatre Saturday, February 25. Mr. Peters is familiar with every bit of the African locale described in White's book, and was of great assistance to the Read research department during the filming of this production.

House Peters spent many years on the dark continent. His experiences were both colorful and thrilling. Starting out as the star at the head of his own dramatic company, the popular actor wound up in the Kimberley diamond mine region, where he prospected for precious gems. Peters is the typical soldier of fortune. His role in "The Leopard Woman" could not have been more to his liking, if it had been specifically written for him. Consequently he gives in "The Leopard Woman" one of the most capable performances of his long successful career.

Many Auction Sales Slated for Coming Month

Auction sales have been and will be plentiful for the next few weeks.

Probably the biggest sale of the season will take place on Saturday, March 4, when the McDougall property will be sold at public auction. This sale comprises 168 head of live stock and an enormous amount of farm machinery and miscellaneous goods. L. H. Freeman will act as auctioneer for this sale. The McDougall farm is located five miles northwest of Antioch and two miles southeast of Wilmet.

Another sale of interest is the property of Warren Hook, one-fourth mile north of Millburn. This sale is also to be held on Saturday, March 4, and will consist of much farm machinery, cattle horses and miscellaneous articles. L. J. Slocum will execute this sale.

The community sale at the Savage home on Main street last Saturday proved a success and further attempts will be made to have these sales quite frequently.

There will be a community sale at Salem on Friday, March 3, in which the public is invited to bring articles to be sold. Up to date a large amount of goods are to be disposed of, including cattle, horses, household goods and articles of every description. If you have anything useful, but not needed, these community sales are a great place to dispose of them.

Relates Ancient History of Grass Lake Region

The older residents of Grass Lake tell us some interesting facts of their earlier days. Mr. Coleman Little and Mr. Alonzo Little were interviewed and told us the following:

Mr. and Mrs. Asa Little moved to the farm now owned by Mr. Robert Selter, about eighty years ago. There were five boys in the family and they visited Hockberry Island where the Indians were camped. This tribe of Indians made their camp here for many years. The Indian boys were expert shots with bow and arrow. One of their pastimes was to place a penny in a post to see who could shoot the penny. The pennies were furnished by the white visitors. They were not at all backward in helping themselves to anything they happened to see and wanted. One of their habits that was not agreeable to housewives was walking into the home without knocking. At such times the good wife gave whatever she happened to have in the shape of food.

Many arrows and Indian relics have been found here. When Mr. Little broke ground for an addition to his hotel he scrapped out a number of skeletons. Without a doubt this was an Indian burial place. The skeletons were all buried in a sitting position with the dirt piled around and over them.

The school district at that time extended to the Fox Lake road on the east and as far as the Sylvan Beach road on the north. The pupils were sometimes people who were married and felt the need of more knowledge. The school house was also used for church and Sunday school.

One of the sports enjoyed by the young people was known as the Flying Dutchman. This was made by placing a strong pole through the ice and allowing it to freeze in solidly. Then on one end of a long strong rope a large sleigh was fastened, on the other end was an iron ring which was slipped over the pole in the ice. After the sleigh was started two people could keep it going fast enough to take away the breath by standing five or six feet from the pole and pushing on the rope.

Another sport that the boys enjoyed was to see how many times they could run around the house barefooted in the snow. Mr. Little says they did not suffer from colds in consequence.

One can hardly believe when looking at the modern homes in this locality that the first houses were log houses.

Dance to Help Pay for New Fire Truck

At a special meeting of the local fire department Tuesday evening quite a little discussion was held as to the soliciting of funds to help pay for the new Waterous fire pumper, which the department has contracted for. This pumper will be delivered to Antioch in about forty-five days and at which time the first payment comes due. To meet this first payment the department voted to hold a dance on the evening of Antioch's Ford day. Mr. Roising, a member of the department, stated that at that time the new addition to the garage would be finished and would be of ample size to hold three hundred couple and that he would turn the new space over to the department for the evening.

Quick action was taken on Mr. Roising's proposal and committees were immediately appointed as follows: Dance committee, to have full charge, W. J. Christian, Arthur Rosenfeldt and John L. Horan; music committee, James Horan, James Dunn and Earl Horton; refreshment committee, Frank Huber, Wm. Girard, Wm. Story, Arnold Buschman and Clarence Shultis.

The date for Antioch's Ford day will be announced shortly which will also be the date of the dance.

Commercial Association Appoints Lighting Committees

At a meeting of the Commercial association Tuesday night the question of lighting and the removal of poles from the business section was discussed. Power was voted the Chairman, Dr. W. W. Warriner to select the committees.

The committee on easement, Messrs. Roeschlein, Kuelman, Veigel and Chase Webb.

Committee on lighting—Messrs. Roeschlein, J. W. McGee and John Woodhead. George Bacon was selected to act as a committee of one by the president to petition the Soo line to have No. 1, leaving Chicago at 1:30 a. m., make regular stops here.

Local Basketball Teams Win Three Games Friday

Antioch had a big night at basketball last Friday when the three local teams disposed of their opponents in rapid succession. The first game of the evening between the "High Seconds" and Lake Villa proved the most evenly matched game of the evening, Antioch winning by a score of 10 to 9 margin. Lake Villa was greatly outweighted, but put up a game battle throughout and made the high school boys travel a fast pace to keep ahead of them.

The high school first team had little trouble trouncing the Gurnee high school team. Antioch's teamwork is improving rapidly and the boys think they can hold their own with the best of high school teams.

The last game of the evening between Antioch town team the Union Grove Wildcats was an interesting game to watch. The score 24 to 9, does not indicate the closeness of the combat, but nevertheless it was a close, well played game throughout, with Ralph James playing a stellar game for the Antioch boys.

The lineup: Antioch—James, Folbeck, Barthel, Nabor, Vos. Union Grove—Overson, Callender, Overson, Dunkirk, Crane.

Friday evening Libertyville will come to Antioch to play against the high school team. This should prove the best game of the season and a large crowd should be on hand to cheer the local lads to victory.

Frank T. Holt Elected to Head Milk Producers

The annual election of officers of the Milk Producers' association was held Monday in the ball room of the LaSalle hotel, Chicago.

Frank T. Holt was re-elected president and E. Rockwell, secretary. The meeting at times was inclined to be turbulent but on the whole the business of the meeting was very well handled.

Despite the rumors that the Marketing company men were to pack the meeting they were very conspicuous with their absence and the "old gang" had their own way.

Mr. W. D. Dunning was mentioned as a candidate for the office of president but those proposing him did not get out and work for him and despite calls from the audience for Mr. Dunning to come to the platform and let the bunch look him over he was not invited by the chair. There evidently was a strong group there ready to bolt the regular ticket and many contended that if Mr. Dunning's friends had put up some kind of a fight he would have made a good showing.

It is the belief of some of those there that a great opportunity was lost there as those in close touch with both factions do not believe that the officers elected and the officers of the Marketing company can really be brought together in harmony.

The other officers elected were: Roy Lewis, first vice president; Krailter, second vice president, and Gillo, treasurer.

Among those present from Antioch were Charles Sibley, Frank Scott, Louis Kufalk, Fred Hawkins and Mr. Hawkins.

Author of "Over the Hill" Was Close to the "Plain People"

It is a striking commentary on the preferences of New York theatregoers that "Over the Hill," the photoplay which broke all picture records by a solid year's run on Broadway, was made from poems of Will Carleton, whose "Farm Ballads" constituted some of the most characteristic lyrics of American rural life.

Probably no other American poet came so close to the hearts of his readers as did Carleton. His were the life stories of plain "folks." His characters were drawn direct from life—were people he had met in his early experiences on the farm. It was for this reason that our parents and grandparents held him in such great esteem and that his verse has been so favored by the elocutionists of the last two generations. The photoplay "Over the Hill," which has been a sensational success wherever shown, will open at the Majestic Theatre, Friday, February 24th, for a three days run.

GIVES TALK ON HOME DECORATING

Oscar McMurray Tells How to Beautify the Entire Household

EASY AND SIMPLE WAYS

Mr. Oscar McMurray of Beverly Hills, Chicago, gave an interesting talk before the Woman's club on "Planning, Equipping and Decorating a Simple Home."

With a few strokes of his pencil he converted a rectangle into a convenient efficient, yet exceedingly simple home—one in which the varied activities of a home can be carried on with the least possible waste of time and energy on the part of the housewife.

By means of rugs and beautiful draperies from his own home he demonstrates the manner in which the keynote of interior decorating should be done.

When one comes to think of it—it is simple enough, the outstanding thought in Mr. McMurray's talk was that so many fail to think simply and to express by means of the home—the law of harmony that is found throughout all nature.

Nature never uses wrong color combinations nor makes mistakes in planning for the essentials—air, light space utility. The modern architect and interior decorator have revolutionized the house building industry. They have banished the parlor and the pantry and are now after the dining room. Soon it will be eliminated and the family will dine in the kitchen or sun parlor. The high cost of building necessitates elimination of useless room—and the modern trend toward outdoor life demands sun parlors and sleeping porches.

The interior decorator ruthlessly consigns pictures and wall decorations to the attic and insists that the windows of the home be so placed and so framed as to permit us to gaze upon pictures whose colors never fade and whose changing beauty never fails.

We clutter our homes with useless furniture and our lives with the care of a multitude of non essential things.

We fail to recognize the laws of color harmony—in choosing rugs and wall hangings. We select cold gray and blues for north rooms and yellows for the sunny rooms and then wonder that the effect fails to satisfy.

All enjoyed Mr. McMurray and his talk and many went home to dream of new wall coverings and window drapes and to speculate upon the advisability of consigning to the attic most of our cherished "break-a-backs."

An invitation from the Parent-Teachers association was given the Woman's club to be present Thursday evening at the regular meeting of the association. A special program has been prepared by the teachers and an address will be given by Mrs. Alice Hyatt Mather of Chicago, upon the subject "The Boy and the Cigarette." Refreshments will be served and a general social good time expected.

It is earnestly hoped that the Woman's club will show by their attendance, the interest taken in our schools and the teachers. The Woman's club and the Parent-Teacher's association should go hand in hand and cooperate in every effort to make for the highest efficiency of the schools of our community.

A Man To His Mate

By J. ALLEN DUNN

COPYRIGHT BOBBS MERRILL CO.

RAINEY A HERO.

SYNOPSIS.—Littering on the San Francisco water front, John Rainey, newspaper reporter, is accosted by a giant blind man, who asks Rainey to lead him aboard the sealing schooner Karluk. The blind man tells Rainey he is an old shipmate of Captain Simms. In the cabin they find Captain Simms and a man named Carlsen. Simms recognizes the blind man, calling him Jim Lund. Lund accuses Simms of abandoning him, blind, on an ice floe, and denounces him. Simms declares the charge, but Lund refuses to be pacified. He declares his intention of accompanying the Karluk on its expedition north, where it is going in quest of a gold field which Lund has discovered. Peggy Simms' daughter, is aboard, and defends her father. Carlsen, who is a physician, drugs Rainey. Awakening from his stupor, Rainey finds himself at sea. Carlsen informs him he has been kidnapped. He offers Rainey a share of the gold, and Rainey is forced to declare himself satisfied. Lund gives him a brief account of a former expedition of the Karluk, tells him he distrusts Carlsen, and suggests a "partnership." Rainey to act as Lund's "eyes." Rainey is made second mate. Captain Simms is ill and the navigation is entirely in the hands of Carlsen. At the latter's suggestion a shooting match is staged between the seal hunters; then Carlsen tells them there is no more ammunition to be found.

Rainey gave over the spokes and went to the starboard rail with Lund, watching the preparations between fore and main masts for the competition, and telling Lund what was happening. Carlsen gave out some shotgun cartridges from cardboard boxes, twelve to each of the six hunters. Sandy, the roustabout, had been requisitioned to toss up empty bottles, and those who failed cursed him for a poor thrower. A hunter named Deming made no misses, and secured first prize of ten dollars in gold, with a man named Beale scoring two behind him, and getting half that amount from Carlsen.

Then came the test with the rifles. The weapons were all of the same caliber, well oiled, and in perfect condition. Each of the hunters had a few shells in his possession, but they lacked the total of six dozen by a considerable margin.

Carlsen went below for the necessary ammunition while the target was completed and set in place. A keg had been rigged with a weight underslung to keep it upright, and a tin can, painted white, set on a short spar in one end of the keg. A light line was attached to a bridge, and the mark lowered over the stern, where it rode, bobbing in the tail of the schooner's wake, thirty fathoms from the taffrail where the crowd gathered.

More bullets hit the keg than the can, and Carlsen was often called upon as umpire. But the tin gradually became ragged and blotched where the steel-jacketed missiles tore through. Beale and Deming both had five clean, undisturbed hits, tying for first prize. Beale offered to shoot it off with six more shells apiece, and Deming consented.

"Can't be done," declared Carlsen. "Not right now, anyway. I gave out the last shell there was in the magazine."

"Darned funny," said Deming, "n-sealer shy on cartridges! Lucky we ain't worryin' about that sort of a cargo."

"Probably plenty aboard somewhere," said Carlsen, "but I don't know where they are. You boys have got me beaten on rifles and shotguns," he went on, producing from his hip pocket a flat, effective-looking automatic pistol of heavy caliber. "How are you on small arms?"

The hunters shook their heads dubiously.

"Never use 'em," said Deming. "Never could do much with that kind, anyhow. Olve me a revolver, an' I might make out to hit a whale. If he was close enough, but not with one o' them."

"Not much difference," said Carlsen. "Any of you got revolvers?" No one spoke. It was against the unwritten laws of a vessel for pistols to be owned forward of the main cabin. Beale finally answered for the rest.

"Nary a pistol, sir."

"Then," said Carlsen, "I'll give you an exhibition myself. Any bottles left? Beale, will you toss them for me?"

There were eight shots in the automatic, and Carlsen smashed seven bottles in midair. The hunters shouted their appreciation.

"Break all of 'em?" Lund asked Rainey. "Bony bottles left at all?"

He walked toward the taffrail, addressing Carlsen.

"Kin you shoot by sound as well as by sight, Doc?" he challenged.

"I fancy not," said Carlsen.

"If I had my eyes I'd snapshot ye for a hundred bucks," said Lund. "As it is, I might target one or two. Rainey, have some one run a line, head-high, an' fix a bottle on it, will ye? I ain't got a gun o' my own,

"Doc," he continued, "will you lend me yours?" Carlsen filled his clip and Lund turned toward Rainey, who was rigging the target.

"I'll want you to tap it with a stick," he said. "Signal-ling start!" he said.

Rainey got the slender bamboo and stood by. Lund felt for the cord, passed his fingers over the suspended bottle and stepped off five paces, hefting the automatic to judge its balance.

Rainey tapped the bottle on the neck and it gave out a little tinkle, lost immediately in the crash of splintering glass as the bottle, hit fairly in the torn label, broke in half.

"How much left?" asked Lund. "Half? Tetch it up."

Again he fired and again the bullet found the mark, leaving only the neck of the bottle still hanging. Lund grinned.

"That's all," he said. "Jest wanted to show yo what a blind man can do, if he's put to it."

There was little applause. Carlsen took his gun in silence and moved forward with the hunters and the on-lookers, disappearing below.

"Given 'em something to talk about," chuckled Lund. "Carlsen wanted to show off his fancy shootin'. Wal, I've shown 'em I ain't entirely wrecked, if I ain't carryin' lights. An' I slipped more'n one over on Carlsen at that."

Rainey did not catch his entire meaning and said nothing.

"Did you get wise to the play about the shells?" asked Lund. "A smart trick, though Deming almost tumbled. Carlsen got those dumb fools of hunters to fire away every shell they happened to have forward. If the magazine's empty, I'll bet Carlsen knows where they're plenty more shells, if we ever needed 'em bad. But now those rifles 'n' shotguns ain't no more use than so many clubs—not to the hunters. An' he's found out they ain't got any pistols. He's got one, an' shows 'em how straight he shoots, jest in case there should be any trouble between 'em. Phys both ends to the middle, does Carlsen. Slick! But he ain't won the pot. They's a joker in this game. Melbe he holds it, melbe not."

He nodded mysteriously, well pleased with himself.

CHAPTER IV.

The Bowhead.

Captain Simms appeared again in the cabin and on deck, but he was not the same man. His illness seemed to have robbed him permanently of what was left him of the spring of manhood. It was as if his juices had been sucked from his veins and arteries and tissues, leaving him flabby, irresolute, compared to his former self. Even as Lund shadowed Rainey, so Simms shadowed Carlsen.

Sometimes the girl would come up on deck in her own waterproofs and stand against the rail. And presently Carlsen would come from below or forward and stand to talk with her until she was tired of the deck.

They did not seem much like lovers. Rainey fancied. They lacked the little intimacies that he, though he made himself somewhat of an automaton at the wheel, could not have failed to see. If the girl slipped, Carlsen's hand would catch and steady her by the arm; never go about her waist. And there was no especial look of welcome in her face when the doctor came to her.

Carlsen seldom took over the wheel. Rainey did more than his share from sheer love of feeling the control. But one day, at a word from the girl, Carlsen and she came up to Rainey as he handled the spokes.

"I'll take the wheel a while, Rainey," said the doctor.

Rainey gave it up and went amidships. Out of the tail of his eye he could see that the girl was pleading to handle the ship, and that Carlsen was going to let her do so.

Rainey shrugged his shoulders. It was Carlsen's risk. It was no child's play in that weather, to steer properly. It took not only strength, but watchfulness and experience to hold the course in the welter of cross-seas.

Lund and Rainey stood together by the weather-rail. It was still Rainey's deck watch, and at any moment Carlsen might relinquish the wheel back to him as soon as the girl got tired. Suddenly shouts sounded from forward, a medley of them, indistinct against the quivering wind. Sandy, the roustabout, came dashing aft along the sloping deck, catching clumsily at rail and rope to steady himself, flushed with excitement, almost hysterical with his news.

"A bowhead, sir!" he cried when he saw Rainey. "An' killers after him! Blowin' dead ahead!"

Beyond the bows Rainey could see nothing of the whale, that must have sounded in fear of the killers, but he saw half a dozen scytliske, black fins cutting the water in streaks of foam, all abreast, their high dorsals waving, wolves of the sea, hunting for the gray bowhead whale, to force its mouth open and feast on the delicacy of its living tongue. So Lund told him in swift sentences while they waited for the whale to branch.

Rainey glanced aft. Sandy had carried his warning to Carlsen and the girl, and now was craning over the lee rail, kneedeep in the wash, trying to see something of the combat. Peggy Simms' little figure was leaning to one side as she, too, gazed ahead, though she still paid attention to her steering and held the schooner well up, her face bright with excitement, wet with flying brine, wisps of yellow hair streaming free in the wind from beneath the close grip of her wooden red tann-o-shanter.

"Bl-o-ows!" started the deep voice of a lookout, from where sailors and hunters had grouped in the bows to witness this gladiatorial combat between sea monsters, stung fitfully in a sea that was running wild.

"Bl-o-ows!" The deep voice almost leaped an octave in a sudden shrill of apprehension. Others voices mingled with his in a clamor of dismay.

"Look out! Oh, look out! Dead ahead!"

The enormous bulk of the whale had appeared, not to spout, but to lie belly up, rocking on the surface with fins outspread, paralyzed with terror, directly in the course of the Karluk, while toward it, intent only on their blood lust, leaped the killers, thrusting at its head as the schooner surged down. In that tremendous sea the impact would be certain to mean the staying in of something of a butt.

"Hard a lee!" yelled Rainey. "Up with her! Up!"

Forward, the men jumped to handle the headsails. The Karluk started to spin about on its keel, instinct to the spinning plane of the rudder. But changing plane of the rudder, the waves were running tremendously high, and the wind blowing with great force, the water rolling in great mountains of sickly greenish gray, topped with foam that blew in a level sea.

As the schooner hung in a deep trough, the wind struck at her, bows on.

Rainey saw one huge hallow rising, curving, high as the gulf of the main, it seemed to him, as he grasped at the coil of the main halyards. Down came the tons of water, booming on the deck that bent under the blow, splilling in a great catenar that swished across the deck.

His feet were swept from under him, for a moment he seemed to swing horizontal in the stream, clutching at the halyards. The sea struck the opposite rail with a roar that threatened to tear it away, piling up and then seething overboard.

With it went a figure. Rainey caught sight of a ghastly face, a mouth that shouted vainly for help in the pandemonium, and was instantly stopped by straining brine, pop-eyes appealing in awful fright as Sandy was washed away in the cascade. The halyards were held on the pin with a turn and twist that Rainey, swiftly loosened, lifting the coil free, making a fast loop, and thrusting head and arms through it as he flung himself after the roustabout.

A great bulk wallowed just before him, the helpless body of the bowhead whale, the killers darting in a mad melee for its head. Then a figure was literally hurled upon the slippery mass of the mammal, its gray body plain in the welter, a living raft against which the waves broke and tossed their spray.

Clawing frantically, Sandy clutched at the base of the enormous pectoral fin, clinging with maniacal strength, and with fear. Striking out to little and with fear, he helped buoy himself, purpose, save to help buoy himself, blinded by the flying sea and broken crests, Rainey felt himself unprepared, swept impotently on and slammed against the slimy bulk, just close enough to Sandy to grasp him by the collar, as the whale, stung by a killer's tearing at its oily tongue, flailed with its fin and the two of them slid down its body, deep under water.

Rainey fought against the suffocation and the fierce desire to gasp and relieve his tortured lungs. The lad's weight seemed to be carrying him down as if he was a thing of lead, but Rainey would not relax his grip. He could not. He had centered all his energy upon the desire to save Sandy, and his nerve centers were still tense to that last conscious demand.

The Karluk was into the wind and they were in what little lee there was, dragging aft at the end of the halyards, being fetched in toward the rail by the mighty tugs of Lund, a

Band Concert and Program

The first program to be given by the newly organized Wilmet high school band has been set for Saturday evening, February 25, and will take place in the M. W. A. hall in the village of Wilmet.

The band consisting of thirty-four pieces was organized under the direction of the Frank Holton Instrument Co., of Elkhorn, Wis. It is composed of school members as well as interested individuals of the community.

The boys have worked very conscientiously during the past three months and the able manner in which they play speaks very highly for the boys as well as their leader, Mr. Wright, of Salem.

Besides the numbers by the band, the committee is pleased to announce that selections will be rendered by different members of the Holton-Elkhorn band and also by the leader of the high school band, Clarence E. Wright. The program on the part of the Holton-Elkhorn people will consist of a number of selections by the Holton saxophone quartette, and also a number of solos by H. W. Burch, cornet soloist.

The boys have just purchased suits, and they are anxious to go as far as possible toward defraying expenses which have come up as a result. The entire proceeds will go to the band. The program for the occasion has been arranged as follows:

March, W. H. S. band; selection, Holton-Elkhorn quartette; song, U. F. H. School; waltz, W. H. S. band; cornet solo, H. W. Burch; polka, W. H. S. band; trombone solo, Clarence Wright; song, U. F. H. school; march, W. H. S. band; selection, Elkhorn-Holton quartette; America, audience, band to accompany.

Come out and boost the band.

BIG SUMMER RESORT

PROJECT NEAR HERE

Extensive Play Ground Now Being Developed at Lake Tombeau

Indicative of the well nigh unlimited demand for golf facilities in the Chicago area is the unique and extensive development under way at Nippersink Lodge, near Genoa Junction.

The idea which at Nippersink is being carried rapidly to culmination was that of E. G. Shinner, Chicago stock yards merchant, who for a number of years has owned and operated what have become the well-known Tombeau farms, comprising some 700 acres of land in the famous southern Wisconsin lake region.

From the standpoint of natural charm the tract of land in question is perhaps rivaled by none in its vicinity. Rolling and well drained, heavily wooded by a dense but broken growth of gnarled oak, with deep spring-fed lakes, with meadowland fragrant in spring with crab, and brilliant with red but and hawthorne, with views from the hilltops overlooking the meadow and woodland and with bracing ozone it is a region destined indeed to alleviate the enervating influences of city life. With this charming environment to build upon, Nippersink Lodge, with the expenditure of several thousand dollars added to the present investment of more than $200,000, bids fair to become the mecca of Chicago golfers.

In the development of the project every attempt has been made to safeguard, as well as add to, the natural beauty of the landscape. Already a thoroughly modern eighteen-hole golf course has been completed. This course, sixty-four hundred yards in length, will be ready for play in June. Plenty of land is available for still another nine or eighteen hole course when occasion demands.

To house the guests at Nippersink there are now being constructed one hundred cottages, attractively placed in groups along tree covered hills bordering Lake Tombeau. Between the cottages, in the open doles, will be children's playgrounds, arranged with rustic apparatus to delight the hearts of the youngsters.

Upon a prominent overlooking Lakes Tombeau and Benedict stand twin buildings designed as are the cottages in the English style, with rough hewn beams and plaster walls. The first of these buildings, the lodge or community hall, contains a great space for dancing, for movie and other entertainment planned for the enjoyment of the guests, while in the wings and basement of the buildings are the showers and lockers for players.

Connected with the Lodge by a terraced garden is the dining hall, built with rustic beamed interior and capable of seating several hundred guests.

Approximately seven miles of curved roads lead through the property, making accessible a number of sites for summer homes. A mile and one-half of lagoons will be built connecting the lakes and giving water frontage to lots not directly upon the lake shore.

The management has taken pains to provide facilities for all popular sports for both old and young. Lakes Tombeau and Benedict are spring-fed and furnish most excellent fishing. It is planned to make canoeing a feature and the inland waterways will lend enchantment to this sport. A stable of excellent riding horses will be maintained for the use of guests and facilities are being provided for base ball, tennis, croquet and other popular games. Bathing, boating, fishing and dancing, together with golf, are destined to occupy fully the time of the "Nippersinkers."

Nippersink Lodge is to be kept entirely private and although not a club in the strict sense of the word, is being operated on this basis as closely as possible. While a limited number of local players, from the popular summer colonies around will be given ground privileges, for the most part the golf course will be retained strictly for the use of cottagers and lot owners.

The general development is in the hands of the American Park Builders, well known landscape architects of Chicago, who have planned and built many golf courses and resort projects throughout the country. In collaboration with this company Charles D. Faulkner, architect, has prepared plans for the buildings.

Nippersink will be completed in time for the opening of the season of 1922, when every facility will be installed complete for the enjoyment of the guests.

Nippersink stands alone, a most delightful and complete summer resort, first, because of the artistic and attractive arrangement of grounds and buildings; second, because of its natural beauty, and finally, because of its privacy and freedom from intrusion.

BRISTOL

Asphalt Pavements.

American asphalt pavements consist chiefly of sand and pulverized limestone. The asphalt itself serves merely as a binder to hold the other materials together. In Europe asphalt pavements are generally made of asphaltic limestone, or "rock asphalt," consisting of limestone naturally mixed with asphalt.

Gurnee Scene of Wild Time; Two Men Are Fined

Rowdism at Gurnee high school last Friday night today ended in heavy fines and severe lecture for two Libertyville young men charged with having created a disturbance, and behind which Justice H. C. Coulson and members of the Warren township high school saw a plot to break up the basketball games and dances which have been held there this winter.

Gust Jensen, who works in a Libertyville garage, and John Haas, also of that place, escaped from Constable Julius Bratzke, when he and several members of the school board tried to prevent them from leaving the hall, but R. B. Dixon, Gurnee business man took the license number of their car after they had backed into two automobiles and were backing into the road where they turned off their lights and dashed away in the darkness.

Principal Henley, of the school, testified that during the progress of the game Haas came down the aisle in the balcony and told him that somebody wanted to fight and that he was his friend and would help him. "I told him I wasn't in that business," said Principal Henley. "He accosted me a little later and put his hand on my shoulder, and put his face close to mine. His breath was very offensive and I'd say he had been drinking."

"I told him he was making a fool of himself and a nuisance and he'd better go away and sit down. 'If you're trying to make a fool of me I'll make a fool of you' Haas replied;

"I'll lick you." I started for the rear of the balcony, where Jensen was sitting and up to this time had behaved himself. "Come on, Jensen," Haas said. Jensen followed us down into the corridor."

There they were joined by Harry Flood, Mr. Dixon, members of the school board and Constable Bratzke. Bratzke told Haas he would take him—he was under arrest and would take him to Waukegan. Jensen then spoke up with: "You're not going to take my friends to Waukegan; I can lick any in the house." Jensen is declared to have said several times during the arguments that followed.

The two young men were ordered not to leave but Haas got into the machine and called to Jensen to come on. They made their getaway. Constable Bratzke was unarmed.

Mr. Flood testified that he told them they were welcome, but that no profanity or disturbance would be permitted.

Several weeks ago there was also a "rookus" at the school during the basketball game.

"I am convinced these men went there for the purpose of starting trouble," declared Justice Hervey C. Coulson, before whom Haas and Jensen were arraigned this morning on a charge of disorderly conduct, "and if they belong to a gang that is trying to create trouble they're in bad business. Jensen appears to be less of an offender than Haas, but instead of coming to the aid of the latter he should have been the one to disprove of his actions. 'I'm going to make the fine high enough so that it will be a lesson to them—$100 and costs each, and if they ever come into this court again or any others charged with starting trouble at Gurnee high school, they will be more severely punished. "Can you pay the fine now?" "No," replied the defendants. "Jail," concluded Justice Coulson. Haas and Jensen were remanded to the custody of Constable Pettelair and this afternoon were trying to get somebody to pay their fines. Haas told the court he has $47.

Woman's Club Urges Near East Relief Work

The Near East Relief is a work to which our club women should give a ready and helping hand. The greatest work which the federated women of America have done has been for the women and children of our country. Now the call has come to us from a far away country where women and little children are perishing from cold and hunger.

Hungry, homeless, clad in rags, these tragic victims of the war huddle hopelessly together in the dirty streets of the city or in the caves and ditches and gullies of the mountains where some shelter is offered from the storm and cold.

A well known magazine correspondent writes in the American Woman magazine as follows:

In a rough cave hole in the old sea wall about Constantinople five women huddle together. It is impossible to tell whether they are young or old. Their unkempt hair hangs long about their gray gaunt faces and into their eyes which seem to hold an eternity of suffering. They seem like wild animals, these women as they hold out twisted hands in beseeching gestures. In that one spot is epitomized all the tragedy, all the unspeakable misery and all the glorious courage and pride of the women of the Near East.

These women living like savages in this hole in the ruined sea wall on the sea of Masmora—their husbands killed in the past wars and massacres or still fighting on the Greek-Turk front—are typical of hundreds of thousands of women and girls throughout Asia Minor, Armenia and Constantinople. From these women on the sea wall to the little girls of twelve and fourteen years who offer themselves for sale for the price of a dinner is presented tragedy and misery beyond comprehension. They have passed through five years of terrible torture. It is hard for the women of America to understand how terrible.

To groups of well dressed, well fed women in the homes, churches and club rooms throughout our rich country, it would seem that such things can not be, and yet even the half cannot be told.

And the children! Jostling against ones elbows, doling from under foot on every street. Little white faced creatures with staring eyes that peer out from under their matted hair like those of wild animals. From beneath their unspeakably dirty and ragged garments their matted bodies bear telling testimony to the horrors through which they have passed.

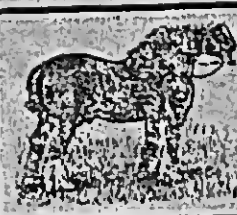

Most of the children who have homes are kept by their grandmothers—women so bent and wrinkled who went through the massacres and exile of 1915 only to be driven from their homes by the fighting of the past year. The children beg from the passers by in a sing song whine. Just a crust of bread most of them ask. Money means less to them than food. In this way and from the scraps they pick up from the gutters and refuse heaps they make their daily meals.

Wretched little ones, whose mothers are dead because they gave every scrap of food and clothing they could get their hands on to the children.

And it is the children who have mothers who are the worst off. For they can claim no admittance to the orphanages being run by the near east relief for those children whose parents are dead. It was deemed the only way to select from the overwhelming number of destitute children who came to them for help.

True, Asia Minor and Armenia are distant—4,000 miles distant. If it were otherwise, if the suffering were in our own country relief would have been given long ago. Hunger, however, is hunger, wherever it is found—around the corner or 4,000 miles away. Ties of parenthood and family are as strongly welded. Life and death are not matters of geography.

In all this the American women are having a part. It is they who are helping these tragic women of the near east to fight through this most terrible of battles. More than four hundred relief workers and missionaries have stood side by side with them. Hundreds of thousands of women back here in America are doing

C. E. WHELOCK of Libertyville, Ill.

In general there are four types of soil in Lake county.

1. The upland prairie soils are usually rich in organic matter and originally had a generous supply of fertility. They were covered with prairie grasses, the partly decayed roots of which formed a large part of the organic matter. The flat and poorly drained areas are richest in organic matter because the excessive moisture in the soil did not allow the grass to decay as rapidly as it did on the higher ground. These areas when tile drained make some of the most productive land in the county.

2. The upland timber soils are much like the prairie soils except that they contain much less organic matter. These areas were once covered with timber which prevented the growth of grass and the forest fires destroyed the accumulation of leaves, twigs and fallen trees. The organic matter that did remain was almost completely decayed and was not incorporated with the soil. The upland timber soils need lots of organic matter. These soils often bake after a rain and lose moisture rapidly due to lack of humus.

3. Terrace soils were formed at the time of the melting of the glacier when the valleys were flooded and the streams overloaded with coarse sediment. They are sometimes called second bottom lands and are usually underlain by gravel or sand.

4. Swamp and bottom lands which include the low areas around lakes and the poorly drained lowlands.

Analyses of these soil made by the state university show a wide difference in fertility. Even soils of the same type vary in production due to natural differences in the fertility of the virgin soil or due to different systems of farming. Some systems exhaust the fertility much more rapidly than others. A field on one side of the fence may produce thirty bushels of corn per acre while the other side of the fence will yield their part by their financial and moral support.

Whatever other accomplishments the women of America have to their credit during these past years the help they have given their sisters in distress is one of the greatest achievements of the age.

Congress has recognized the responsibility for the care of this Christian people and has authorized the near east relief to call upon the American people for help. Fifteen million dollars is required. Of this the quota for Illinois is one million. Of this amount the 70,000 club women of this rich state should be able to raise one hundred thousand dollars which means only $1.50 to each individual.

This humanitarian appeal was presented to the club at its last meeting and $38 was quickly subscribed. However, all members were not present and the opportunity is hereby extended to you to do your part to save these helpless women and children from a cruel death.

Bring or telephone your subscription to the club secretary, Mrs. Hughes. The fifty women of the club should raise $75 easily. Is not our program "for the womanhood of the world?"

"Inasmuch as ye have done it to one of the least of these my brethren ye have done it unto me."

To Stop Mine Fires. A new method of checking fire in mines is by means of boxes of fine rock dust suspended across the roof of the tunnel. Any shock due to an explosion is sufficient to cause them to break away from their supports, and the finely divided dust falls into the passage and prevents the flames from spreading.

Schumann Haunted by Note. Durling the latter years of his life Schumann, the great composer, was obsessed by the note A. He declared that it rang in his ears day and night and to escape it he more than once attempted suicide.

fifty bushels. Both fields have the same care and same type of soil. In one the soil has been robbed year after year and the other the fertility has been maintained by use of legumes, phosphate and if the soil is sour by the additional use of limestone.

On the experiment field at Antioch over a period of thirteen years, every dollar invested in phosphorus paid back $2.54.

The common prairie soil contains only enough nitrogen to produce maximum crops for 60 years, while the timber soil contains only about one-third as much nitrogen as the prairie soil or sufficient for only eighteen 100 bushel crops of corn including grain and stalks if everything was taken off and nothing returned.

With 50 bushel crops the supply of nitrogen will last longer.

With respect to phosphorus half the soil area of the country contains only enough of this element for ten four year crop rotations if maximum yields were secured and the entire crop removed. Three-fourths of the phosphorus taken from the soil is deposited in the grain so that by returning all the straw and stalks there is a great drain on this element of fertility.

The potassium in the most common soil types (not including peat) is sufficient for thirty-six centuries, if only the grain is sold; a considerable difference when compared with nitrogen and phosphorus.

The figures show the need of conserving fertility even on comparatively new soil. Three or four generations could reduce the fertility so low as to make farming impossible.

By using legumes, manure and phosphorus, fertility can be maintained and increased. It does not necessarily mean to increase production but grow the same amount on fewer acres with less expense.

Doctor Charles C. Jesse is coming back. In his remarkable address here he so captured his audience that an effort was begun at once to secure him for one of his famous lectures. The effort has succeeded and Doctor Jesse will appear at the Methodist church on Friday night of next week at 8 o'clock in one of his great Lyceum lectures.

This captivating orator is known from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from Canada to Mexico as one of the most brilliant and charming of the platform men in the country. It is being freely predicted that the seats will all be sold several days in advance of the date, which means that all who want to make sure of enjoying this rare treat must get their tickets very soon. Watch for the window cards. Doctor Jesse "is an oratorical whirlwind" is the verdict of his most discerning auditors.

The vocal solo by Bertha James Gilbert last Sunday morning was an unusually high grade selection and sung with a rare power of interpretation, which made all feel that they hope this gifted singer will favor us whenever she comes this way.

It was a great meeting the Methodists of Lake county had at Waukegan last week. Those attending from Antioch were, besides the pastor and his wife, J. C. James, Mrs. Drusilla Ferris, Mrs. W. F. Ziegler, Mrs. Leonora Hughes and William W. Runyard and wife. The meeting was addressed by several of the very strong speakers of the church at large and the program of the work of the church for this year was set forth in a way that inspired all with a greater resolve to be one hundred percent efficient in pushing to the highest success every item in the program of the church work for this year. The two features of the work for the year upon which the energies of the church are to be largely concentrated are Evangelism and Stewardship. Evangelism is defined as the actual winning of people to Christ and to membership in the church. The Stewardship objective is to get every member of the church definitely pledged to setting aside one-tenth of his net income for religion, as an acknowledgment that God, and not himself, is the owner of all he possesses, and that he is only God's steward to administer it as God wills.

MOTHER, QUICK! GIVE CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP FOR CHILD'S BOWELS

Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup." If the little tongue is coated, or if your child is listless, cross, feverish, full of cold, or has colic, a teaspoonful will never fail to open the bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the constipation poison, sour bile and waste from the tender, little bowels and gives you a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child to-morrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get in imitation fig syrup.—Advertisement.

Smokestack Quickly Wrecked.

Five workmen recently brought a 145-foot smokestack to the ground in 55 minutes, by a new method. This stack, on Staten Island, N. Y., measured 47 feet in diameter at the base and weighed 350 tons. Three openings were made at the base, and wooden blocks, 4 feet high, 4 inches in diameter, were inserted as shoring. A gap, 4 feet high, was then made in more than half of the circumference by removing the blocks. Two of the shoring blocks were removed and the center block, soaked with kerosene, was burned out. The stack crashed with such force that some of the bricks were buried 2 feet in the ground, but most of them remained intact and can be used again.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

On Her Dignity.

Sir Peter O'Brien, a lord chief justice of Ireland, was going to a commission of assizes on the Munster circuit, on which he had been for years a leader. A somewhat illigible female witness of the peasant class, with whom the chief justice when practicing at the bar had been professionally acquainted, was giving evidence.

The chief justice interfered with a question, and commenced thus: "Now, Peggy, tell me—" The witness, with a ludicrous expression of offended dignity, thus rebuked his lordship's familiarity of manner: "Mrs. Morlan, is, Pether, if you please."

REFUSES SENATE DATA ON TREATY

President Declares He Has No Record of Secret Proceedings.

CAN'T FURNISH INFORMATION

Asserts It Is Not "Compatible With Public Interest" to Bare Work of the Sessions—May Call Hughes Back.

Washington, Feb. 22.—President Harding, replying to the senate on the Hiltchcock resolution asking for information relative to the negotiation of the four-power Pacific treaty, stated it was impossible to furnish the requested information because most of the negotiations were conducted without the maintaining of a record.

The President said it would not be compatible with public interests to disclose the confidential negotiations of the treaty negotiators but he declared "that there were no concealed understandings and no secret exchanges of notes."

Almost coincident with the arrival of the President's letter at the senate, the foreign relations committee, by a vote of ten to one, ordered the treaty regarding the island of Yap reported favorably.

The action followed a two-hour debate in the committee and was taken after several Republican and Democratic senators had indicated they would favor reporting the treaty to the senate, but reserved the right to further discuss it on the floor. The single negative vote was cast by Senator Pittman (Dem.).

Those who voted to report the treaty were Senators Lodge, McConnah, Kellogg, Brandegee, Borah, Johnson, New and Wadsworth, Republicans, and Villanova and Pomeroy, Democrats. Among the absentees Senators Hiltchcock, Democrat, and McCormick and Moses, Republicans, were said to have indicated previously that they would vote for favorable committee action.

Troump ratification of the treaties of the arms conference and participation by the United States in the Geneva meet is urged in a resolution.

The President's reply to the Hiltchcock resolution, which was adopted by the senate last week, follows:

"Responsive to senate resolution No. 237, asking for records, minutes, arguments, debates, conversations, etc., relating to the so-called four-power treaty I have to advise that it is impossible to comply with the senate's request. Many of the things asked for in the resolution it is literally impossible to furnish, because there were many conversations and discussions quite outside the conference, yet vital to its success. Naturally these are without record.

"I do not believe it to be compatible with public interests or consistent with the amenities of international negotiations to attempt to reveal informal and confidential conversations or discussions of which no record was kept, or to submit tentative suggestions or informal proposals, without which the arrival at desirable international understandings would be rendered unlikely if not impossible.

"While I am unable to transmit the information requested, I do, however, take this opportunity to say most emphatically that there were no concealed understandings, and no secret exchanges of notes, and there are no commitments whatever except, as appear in the four-power treaty itself, and the supplementary agreement, which are now in the hands of the senate."

Without discussion the President's letter was referred to the foreign relations committee, when it was read in the senate, the motion being made by Senator Hiltchcock.

After studying the President's reply to his resolution and conferring with Republicans who have criticized the four-party treaty, Senator Hiltchcock declared he believed Mr. Harding's letter had made it "absolutely necessary" for Secretary Hughes to appear before the committee if it is to act intelligently. Senator Borah (Rep.) of Idaho and other committee members took a similar attitude, although it did not appear whether a motion to summon the secretary home from his vacation trip to Bermuda would have a majority.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says: "Take for example 'Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root,' a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments; corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores. Advertisement.

Recently there was announced the discovery of a new human race in the Himalayan mountains. "They were the 'abominable men of the snows,' particularly hideous, hirsute, ferocious beings, of whom an explorer had revealed traces.

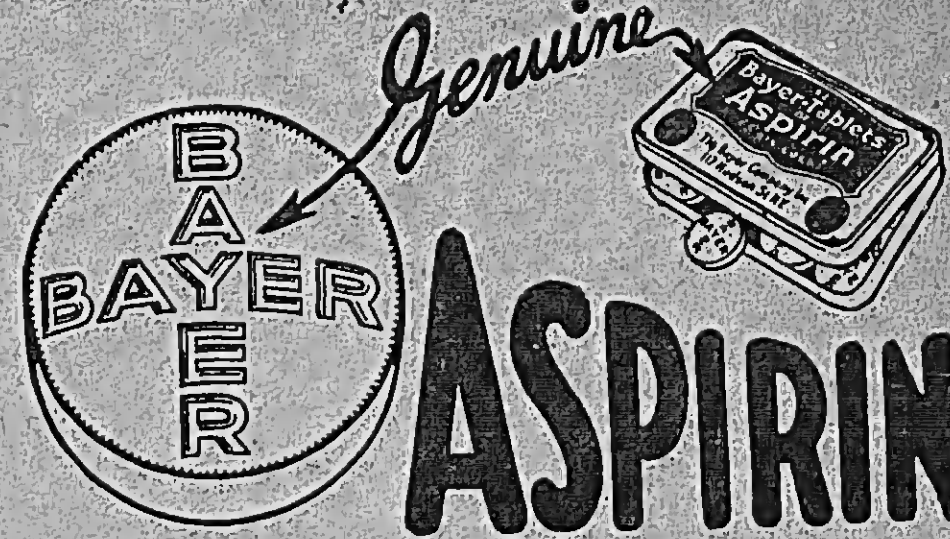

Well, these abominable men, says the Petit Parisien, are no men at all, but big monkeys. They are known by science. One of them can be seen in the galleries of the museum. ISLANDERS SHOULD BE HAPPY Fortunate Inhabitants of Lundy Altogether Free From Visitation of the Tax Collector.

The stipend of £60 ($300) a year offered by the ecclesiastical commissioners to any clergyman disposed to take spiritual charge of Lundy Island seems a fair one, in view of the fact that the island measures only three and a half miles by one mile and numbers barely two hundred inhabitants.

The people of Lundy pay neither rates nor taxes; there are no poor, because all the inhabitants have work found for them; and there are no police, because there are no law-breakers.

Lundy has twice been in the hands of foreigners—once when captured by a band of Turkish pirates, and again, in the time of William III, when French privateers gained temporary possession.—London Tit-Bits.

Large Artificial Lakes.

Sardinia, one of the island possessions of Italy, will soon have artificial lakes ranking among the largest in the world. These lakes are being constructed for irrigation and hydroelectric-power purposes. At the present time, the mining industry of this island forms more than a quarter of the entire Italian output. Zinc alone is produced in the amount of 200,000 tons yearly, but has to be transported to other countries for manufacture. With the hydroelectric power soon to be available, it is expected that, instead of the zinc being exported and then imported in the finished state, this and various other mining products can be manufactured at home.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Public Service Company Prepares For Big Business Boom in Lake Co. —$2,000,000 Initial Expenditure

Belief that the bottom of business depression has been reached and expression of supreme confidence in the future industrial greatness of Waukegan and adjacent territory, is seen in the annual statement made public yesterday by Superintendent Theodore Bloch, of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois. Plans for construction work totaling many thousands of dollars have just been authorized for this year, according to the statement which was made public in connection with the annual report of the company to its stockholders.

Included in this construction work is: Pressing forward of work on the first unit of the giant electric generating station at Waukegan, the first section to cost $2,000,000, and the plans calling for expanding to ten times that size.

Electric extensions in the city estimated to cost $32,000.

Raising of the voltage of the transmission lines connecting the Waukegan station and the sub-stations at Lake Bluff, Barrington and Crystal Lake from 20,000 to 33,000 volts, at an estimated expense, including necessary station equipment of $61,000.

Addition of 3,000 kilowatts of further transforming capacity at the Lake Bluff station, this construction work to cost $15,000.

Construction of a 5,000 kilowatt transformer installation at Broadway and Commonwealth avenue, North Chicago. The initial expenditure of this work will be $20,000, and it is expected will require an ultimate investment of $50,000.

Raising of the voltage of the transmission lines west and south of Waukegan is the first step in the actual construction of the giant electric plant to be built by the Public Service Company, for which ground has already been obtained at the flats on the north end of the city. Work of designing the plant is under way and it is possible that the first unit equipped with a turbine having a capacity of 20,000 kilowatts may be possible of installation before the end of the year. This first unit alone will cost over $2,000,000. When completed the station is expected to have a maximum capacity of 200,000 kilowatts and rank among the largest generating stations in the country.

That Waukegan and the district immediately adjacent did not stand still during 1921, in spite of the business depression, is indicated by the fact that in the city alone, 466 additional householders and industrial customers were added to the electric lines, a gain of 11 per cent. The additional electric power facilities to be provided by the new plant is expected to make Waukegan the center of one of the fastest growing industrial districts in the state. Probably no city or territory in the country will have as great electric power facilities as this territory.

The substantial growth of this city and adjacent territory served by the Public Service Company during the last year, in spite of business depression, and the vastness of the machinery necessary to serve the people, is strikingly shown by the figures in the annual statement. Total number of electric light and power customers on January 1, 1922, was 118,304, an increase of 11,999 for the year. While the company does not supply Waukegan with gas, elsewhere in the territory the households and industries served with this fuel was 74,056, an increase of 2,892.

To meet the electrical requirements of the territory it was necessary for the big plants to generate 359,410,664 kilowatt hours of energy, necessitating use of 400,000 tons of coal. The enormous total of 2,734,393,000 cubic feet of gas was produced, over 100,000 tons of coal and coke, and more than 8,000,000 gallons of gas oil being necessary in the manufacturing process. To protect the electric and gas supply of the people of the territory, the company has purchased its own coal mines and last year 98 per cent of this fuel came from its own mines.

Linking up the remainder of the territory with this city are now 700 miles of high voltage electric transmission lines. The company has 900 miles of gas mains. To these are linked thousands of miles of smaller electric lines and gas pipes. In the territory a population exceeding 500,000 now receive service.

The company is now owned by more than 10,200 stockholders, practically all of whom are customers and live in the territory served. In addition, on January 1, there were 2,548 subscribers paying month by month for their securities. Of the stockholders, 1,230 are employees, who either have fully paid for their stock or are buying it on a partial payment plan. This is believed to be the largest ownership by employees, in proportion to number, of any public utility company in the world.

Faith of the company in the future of the district is seen in the fact that its investment now is upwards of $60,000,000.

"The company has the greatest confidence in the future of this city and the territory served and believes that there should be no halt, in spite of business depression, in building," the annual statement says. "While business in all lines decreased greatly, it is the confident belief that no district in the country will make such a rapid recovery as that in northern Illinois. The widely diversified industry, the rich farms, the mines and of general business will bring this about and this will be hastened by co-operative effort between communities and the industries serving them."

In spite of continued high price of fuel and all other materials entering into production of service, the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois was able to continue payment of usual dividends to holders of common and preferred stock. The annual report shows these owners number 12,748, including those who are purchasing securities on the partial payment plan and practically all are customers, and live in the territory served.

The report contains striking figures showing the extent to which the investment necessary to supply the growing population, has expanded. Investment in plant and equipment and miscellaneous property, total the vast sum of $60,884,680, while other belongings of the company, not included in plants, bring the total assets up to $68,881,630.

Total sales in 1921 amounted to $12,213,316. After payment of operating expenses, including fuel, wages, taxes and plant maintenance, bond interest and making provision for depreciation, there remained $1,579,535 for payment to stockholders, giving ample proof of the stability of the business, even in the face of adverse conditions.

Showing the growth in the territory and the wider use of electricity and gas, the report gives this comparison of customers:

Class of Service	1921	1920
Electricity	118,304	106,305
Gas	74,056	71,164
Water	5,735	6,018
Heat	1,127	1,122

The slight decrease shown in the number of water customers is due to a change in the method of registration, whereby the number of water customers is recorded by accounts or meters, rather than by families served. The increase in electric customers accounted for 27,000 kilowatts of additional business being added to the lines.

The report pays a tribute to the loyalty and efficiency of employees and lauds their efforts towards producing better service even in the face of the unusual situation which affected all business during the year.

Lake County

Tax Increase

Is $1,440,000

The taxes of Lake county have increased to $3,070,572.19 for 1921 from $2,826,535.30, a hike of $144,036.89, according to Treasurer LeRoy W. Bracher.

Of this increase $115,132.24 is on Waukegan property. The total tax rate for the city of Waukegan for 1921 is $10.77 on each $100 assessed valuation, while in 1920 it was $9.19.

A statement of taxes and assessment for 1921, with comparative figures for 1920, as issued by the county clerk, is as follows:

Sacred Concert Sunday at St. Ignatius' Church

Next Sunday afternoon at 4:00 p. m. there will be a special Musical service to which the public is most cordially invited.

The service will consist of Choral Evensong with Mr. Fred Fuller at the organ. Then there will be a solo by Mrs. Robert Smart, and two solos by the quartet consisting of Mrs. Hughes, Mrs. Garland, Mr. McGee and Mr. Bright.

There will also be a few selections of Sacred Music on the Victrola appropriate to the occasion.

This is an occasion which you cannot afford to miss. Come and bring all your friends.

On Saturday evening there will be a Choir Rehearsal at 7:30 for the purpose of practicing all the music for Sunday.

On Sunday morning Church School at 9:45 as usual and Morning Prayer and address at 11:00.

Next Wednesday is Ash Wednesday, the first day of Lent. There will be a celebration of the Holy Communion in the church at 10:30 on Ash Wednesday morning and every confirmed Episcopalian should make his communion at that time. A fuller schedule of the Lenten services for this year will be announced later.
